SEVEN OHIOANS KILLED IN MISHAPS

Clothing Valued at $800 Is Stolen Here

STORE OPENED LAST FRIDAY BURGLARIZED

National Chain Unit Entered by Breaking Glass from Rear Door

LITTLE MONEY TAKEN

Silk Dresses and Men's Clothing Included in Loot, Manager Says

Silk dresses and men's clothing valued by the store management at $800 were stolen from the National Store on W. Center-st last night by burglars who forced an entrance to the store by tearing a heavy wire screen from a rear door and breaking out the glass.

The burglary was discovered by employes of the store when they reported for work this morning and found the back door open. In addition to taking the dresses and men's clothing the burglars had entered one of the display windows and removed a number of one dollar bills that had been attached to various dresses as an advertising feature.

Opened Friday

The store was opened to the public on Friday and it is the belief of the management that the large crowds that visited the store on Friday and Saturday, led the robbers to believe there would be a large amount of cash on hand. This was not the case, however, it was stated at the store this morning. Aside from the money taken from the window, there was very little cash in the store.

Buildings which enclose a small yard at the rear of the store and which is entered by a small door leading from the alley, provided a sheltered place for the intruders to work. They first tore away a heavy wire screen which covered the door and after breaking out a large glass, reached through and unlocked the door. A similar screen in the inside was torn loose.

OFFICIALS TO STUDY SEWAGE CONDITIONS

State and City Officials To Visit Little Scioto River Today

Members of the sewer committee of city council, Service Director Benedict and City Solicitor George Geran, will accompany Chief Engineer F. H. Waring, of the State Board of Health, on a trip to the Little Scioto River late today for the purpose of determining to just what extent the river is being polluted by raw sewage pouring into the stream as the result of wrong sewer connections.

The trip to the river is the result of an objection taken by the estate engineer to the ordinance passed by city Council creating the office of building inspector. In a communication directed to city council, Engineer Waring stated he did not believe the ordinance as drawn, placing the duties of the sewer inspector in a secondary position, would accomplish what the state board of health had started out to accomplish in its campaign for a sewer inspector.

The engineer asked for a meeting of the sewer committee together with the service director and city solicitor, for the purpose of going over the situation and if possible revamp the ordinance with the thought of placing greater stress on the sewer inspection. In addition to declaring that the work should be done by someone technically qualified for the job, the engineer expressed the opinion that the department should be under the jurisdiction of the service director instead of the safety director, as the present ordinance provides.

HUSBAND EXONERATES DORIS M'DONALD

DORIS JULIA M'DONALD

MONTREAL, Que., March 19—Through his eleventh-hour statement completely exonerating Doris Julia M'Donald from any part in the killing of Adelard Bouchard, George M'Donald today had regained the love of the wife who was to have been hanged with him next Friday morning on the gallows in Valleyfield Prison.

The thoughts of the former Oklahoma and Mt. Vernon, N. Y., girl turned today not to her promised freedom, but to the man from whom she had become estranged as the hour of death swiftly approached.

"I did not believe that he would speak out," she said today in her prison cell, "but I am glad that he has told the truth at last. It justifies the love that I had for him, the love that was stilled when I believed he was shielding himself at my expense."

The federal cabinet will consider the case tomorrow but no decision will be made concerning a postponement of the hanging until Thursday night, the eve of the scheduled execution.

Nora Bayes, Famous as Star of Theater for 30 Years, Dies in Brooklyn Hospital

Leaped to Fore from Day, at 18 Years, When She Appeared in Chicago; Believed Recovering from Operation When Death Came

New York, March 19—Nora Bayes, one of the foremost actresses on the American stage, a musical comedy and vaudeville star for years, died today in a Jewish hospital Brooklyn from the effects of an appendicial operation performed last week. She had been thought recovering until last night.

Nora Bayes

She had made a legion of friends in the theatrical profession from the very day, nearly 30 years ago, when, at the age of 18, she ventured out on the stage of a Chicago theater and sang the song that brought her instantaneous recognition—"Down Where the Wurtzberger Flows."

The fame of the talented girl (born Dora Goldberg) became international. On and off the stage she was a comedienne. Her triumphs and vicissitudes were viewed with the keenest sense of humor. She was married five times. Always she gave herself unstintingly to her audience, whether at the Palace on Broadway, the Palladium in London or the town opera house on a one-night stand.

Her first husband was Otto Gressing. She married thereafter Jack Norworth, musical comedy star, Harry Clark and Arthur Gordini. Divorce ended all her marriages but the last. All her husbands but Friedlander, who is in the garage business, were actors.

The musical productions in which Miss Bayes gained her greatest fame included: "Little Miss Fixit," which, incidentally brought the turkey trot into terpichorean favor in 1911; "The Jolly Bachelors," "Roly-Poly," "The Merry-Go-Round," "Made in America," "The Cohan Revue of 1918," "Ladies First," "Her Family Tree," "After Dinner," Snapshots of 1921" and "Queen of Hearts."

TWO MARINE PLANES DAMAGED BY REBELS

Aviators Have Narrow Escape from Bullets Fired by Ambushed Snipers

Managua, Nicaragua, March 19—Two United States airplanes piloted by Marines have been slightly damaged by bullets fired by rebel snipers in the past 36 hours. The aviators escaped injury, but had narrow escapes.

The bullets were fired from a patch of jungle upon a mountain side south of El Chipote, where a Marine base has been established. After the shooting the planes scouted over the district in an effort to locate the snipers, but they were not seen.

12-DAY TRIP AROUND GLOBE IS POSSIBILITY

Speedy Dirigibles Being Constructed; Plan Flights from Germany to America

Leipzig, Germany, March 19—Round the world in 12 days is now a possibility, thanks to the progress in the construction of speedy dirigibles, according to Dr. Hugo Eckener, Germany's foremost aeronautical engineer and commander of the Los Angeles on her Transatlantic flight.

Dr. Eckener revealed today that he plans several flights between Friedrichshafen, the seat of the Zeppelin works, and Lakehurst, New Jersey, the home port of the Los Angeles. These flights will not be undertaken until the new dirigible "L. Z. 1271" is finished early in June. He praised Lakehurst as the ideal landing place on account of its fine mooring mast.

VESSEL IS SAFE AFTER DRIFTING FOR 30 HOURS

New York, March 19—Safe after having drifted helplessly in a high running sea for nearly 30 hours, the Grace liner Santa Teresa was steaming slowly to New York today with her 30 passengers and a crew of approximately 70. In a radio message to the offices of the line here, Capt. William C. Bennet reported that the broken evaporator which disabled the ship off the coast of South Carolina had been repaired.

ACCIDENTAL PISTOL WOUND PROVES FATAL

Merle Winters, 29, Martel, Dies in City Hospital Following Mishap

Accidental discharge of a 25 caliber revolver carried in his pocket, was the indirect cause of the death, at 5 o'clock this morning at City Hospital, of Merle Winters, 29, proprietor of the Martel Garage. Acute peritonitis was given as the immediate cause of death by attending physicians.

The fatal accident occurred about 10 o'clock Saturday morning just outside the Winters' home in Martel as Winters started for his garage carrying the gun in his right hip pocket. The gun discharged, the bullet penetrating Winters' right hip, taking an upward course and entering the abdomen.

The young man was taken to City Hospital in the Homer-Timson ambulance from Caledonia.

Funeral arrangements are being made by relatives today at his home in Martel, where the body was taken this afternoon.

Winters was born on his parents' farm near Martel and has lived in that vicinity for the greater part of his life. He had owned the Martel Garage for two years and had been in the garage business practically all his life.

Surviving him are his widow, Mrs. Nellie Kane Winters, two children Anna Jane, aged 7, and Merle Jr., 10 months, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Winters of near Martel.

Common Shares of Osgood Co. Listed on Marion Market at $700

RECORD FACTORY BID

Group Headed by C. A. Owens Acquiring Ownership of Osgood, Commercial Issues

Common stock of the Osgood Co. was listed today with George B. Knapp, local securities dealer, at $700 a share, said to be the highest price ever offered for stock in any Marion manufacturing concern.

At the same time, $325 a share was bid for stock in the Commercial Steel Castings Co., a corporation closely allied with the Osgood Co. Both companies are controlled by virtually the same executive officers and directors.

The stocks appeared on the local board at these prices for the first time Saturday. Both are "bid" quotations, meaning that these are the prices which prospective purchasers are willing to pay for the shares.

The quotations are the first public development following reports that negotiations under way for several weeks have resulted in a group of the Osgood Co. officers, headed by Clifford A. Owens, acquiring ownership of a large majority of that company's stock through purchases at $700 a share.

Holders Reduced

As a result of these transfers, the number of stockholders has been reduced from approximately 50 to about 20, it is reported.

Rumors current for some time have indicated that the Osgood and Commercial Steel were to be consolidated. No statement either verifying or contradicting this report could be obtained today from officials of the companies.

The virtually unprecedented prices offered for stock in these two companies, as well as current quotations on shares in other local manufacturing concerns, furnish unmistakable proof of stability and prosperity in Marion's industries, local financial authorities state.

Shovel Stock Up

Common stock of the Marion Steam Shovel Co., records show, has increased approximately $400,000 in value since the present management took charge in April of last year.

Marion Steam Shovel Co. units, consisting of one share of preferred stock and a half share of common, were sold in the beginning at $101.50. Today the units are quoted here at $110.

Figuring that the preferred stock still stands at par value, $100, the increase in the unit quotation shows that each share of common is now worth at least $2 more than on the date of issue. The capital structure under the new management includes 50,000 shares of no par common stock, so that the $8 a share increase means a total of $400,000.

Practically all of this rise in the Ma-

More Than 1,000 Persons Attend Rededication of Salem Evangelical Church

Remodeled Edifice Thronged for Three Services Marking Opening of Week's Program of Special Rites; Former Pastors Take Part

More than 1,000 persons were in attendance at the three services which served to dedicate the recently remodeled Salem Evangelical Church, yesterday morning and afternoon and last night.

After the ceremony of presentation of keys at the entrance of the new edifice, Rev. G. A. Kanzler, pastor, and members of the congregation recited the beautiful Evangelical ritual of dedication.

Two former pastors, Rev. R. J. Loew of Strasburg, O., Rev. A. J. Koch of Chicago, and Rev. A. H. Knipping of Columbus, and Rev. Herbert Pfister of Kenton assisted Reverend Kanzler with the services. The offering for the day, to be added to the church building fund, exceeded $1,700.

Special Services

Although formal dedication took place yesterday morning there will be special services arranged by various church organizations' Monday-Friday nights, inclusive, this week. Tonight Reverend Koch will give the sermon at a special service planned by the Sunday School department. Installation of teachers and officers of the School will take place at that time.

In the dedicatory sermon, given by Reverend Loew at the morning service, he said in part, "Let us make of this newly dedicated edifice a house of prayer, a house of praise and a house of promise, a place where broken promises may be renewed, where seeking hearts may be cleansed of their guilt and where the young may be trained to walk in the paths of righteousness."

"Are we adapting ourselves religiously to the needs of our day?" Reverend Loew continued. "No, for in matters of religion we are a hundred years behind the progress of the industrial world. The church of Christ must catch up—it takes a greater and deeper consecration to overcome the powers of evil ever working against the organization of Christ."

Reverend Loew spoke of the new church and similar edifices, being built to the glory of God as the hope of the world, as the salvation of a world progressing in sin, losing the sanctity of the church and its orders "to such evils as companionate marriage."

Kenton Man Speaks

Reverend Herbert Pfister of Kenton spoke at the service last night on the subject, "Measuring a Congregation." "Not by mathematical law nor by external appearance but by the spirit which characterizes the individual in the church, may a congregation be measured," Reverend Pfister said. Talent is developed in silence but character in the strain of life. Life in harmony with the teachings in the spirit of Jesus Christ is the objective of the church."

Afternoon Services

In the afternoon Reverend Knipping and Rev. Herbert F. Weckmueller, vice president of the Marion County Ministerial Association, who represented that body, were the speakers. Reverend Knipping talked on the subject, "The House of God and Its People," placing emphasis on the membership of the church. "The church is not a failure, although some claim that it is since it did not succeed in preventing the World War," Reverend Knipping said. "But education and science had even a better chance to avoid that regrettable conflict of natives and did not raise one hand in protest." The people of the church are still in the minority for there are but 639,000,000 of them in the world, good citizens, good parents, living upright lives."

Choir Music

Especially beautiful were the special numbers by the large church choir directed by John Leffler, and the organ selections by Miss Elfreda Horn, church organist, at the three Sunday services. The new church, which has a seating capacity of 350 and which was re-built at an estimated cost of $23,100, was beautifully decorated with flowers for the occasion.

Among those in attendance from out-of-town were Mrs. Anna Miller and daughter, Mrs. Charles Haeberle, Mrs. Tillie Osterland, Mrs. Arthur Schmidt, Mrs. Wintermuth and Miss Florence Leonhardt of Cleveland, Mr. and Mrs. Scribner, Mr. and Mrs. John S. Krebser of Toledo, Mr. and Mrs. John Goul, Mrs. Frank Zeig and daughter Hazel of Fredericktown, S. S. Hastings of LaRue, Mr. and Mrs. John Selter of Pleasant Township, and the following from Kenton, Rev. and Mrs. Herbert Pfister, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kirchner, Mrs. Barbara Bippus, Mrs. Casper Sorgen, Mr. and Mrs. John Stransky, Mrs. William Stransky, Mrs. Henry Aults, Mr. and Mrs. Trumpheller, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Crawford, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Graul, Mr. and Mrs. Haggard, Mr. and Mrs. George Keil, Mr. and Mrs. Sol. Vordenkirchner, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. BUCYRUS HIGH WILL ENTER STAR CONTEST winner of the Mt. Gilead High School contest will participate in a county elimination contest on March 20.

Nine Schools Now Enrolled in International Oratorical Event Here April 20

Reports from the five counties indicate that plans are nearing completion for the preliminary elimination events. All are scheduled for March 30.

Now that schools throughout this district have made their selection of speakers they are urged to bear in mind the importance of the 10-minute time limit.

Particular emphasis should be placed on the fact that the time required for effective delivery of a speech increases with the size of the auditorium in which contestants will be heard, it was pointed out today by the manager of the contest in this territory which is being sponsored by The Marion Star.

A speech requiring 10 minutes for delivery in small auditoriums which are to be used in the county elimination contests on March 30 will be marred if the speaker attempts to deliver it at the district finals in the Marion Star Auditorium, it was pointed out.

Must Space Words

In a large auditorium such as the one in which the newspaper finals are to be held here on April 20 a speaker must space his words out more carefully, must heighten his effects by pauses, must guard against reverberations caused by words traveling too closely after one another.

The Star Auditorium is particularly well adapted to public speaking contests, the back of the stage is constructed so as to amplify the voice of the speaker.

The safe course, instructors of public speaking claim, is to cut a speech designed for delivery in a small auditorium to nine and one-half minutes if it is to be given in a larger building in order to have ample time for effective delivery.

Should Cut Speech

Even though a contestant has experienced no trouble in delivering his address in an ordinary room he should cut his speech down to the point where he has a good margin of security against that nervous, rushed feeling that comes to a contestant who fears that the effect of his climax will be marred by the timekeepers whistle.

It has been suggested by the contest manager that speakers should simply say "Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen," in beginning their speeches and should not salute the judges or the spirit of the new day or the shades of the past, but proceed to their task.

On that date the Steam Shovel units were quoted at $103. On Jan. 28 they advanced to $104 and on Feb. 17 to $105. The price remained at that figure until March 8, when it jumped five points to $110. This sharp rise took place following publication of reports of the company's earnings up to Jan. 1 of this year.

Huber Manufacturing Co. common is also selling at one of the highest figures in its history. On Jan. 20 it was listed at $110 bid and today the bid price is $119.50.

General Ecavator Co. stock is quoted at $110 and Alloy Cast Steel at $105. These are Marion's youngest industrial concerns, having been in operation little more than a year. The fact that stocks in both have registered substantial advances in that time from par of $100 indicates that they are thriving and prosperous.

Chief Officers

John D. Owens and his son, C. A. Owens organized these two companies and are now the chief executive officers.

Growth of the Osgood Co. business is on record as being one of the most remarkable chapters in the annals of local industrial history. Within approximately 10 years the stock has increased from near par of $100 to the present bid price of $700.

Running a close second to the Osgood record is the achievement of the new Marion Steam Shovel Co. in developing and increasing its business since it took charge of affairs in April, 1927.

The company is capitalized on this basis: $3,600,000 in 20-year first mortgage bonds, paying 6 per cent interest; $3,100,000 in seven per cent cumulative preferred stock; 50,000 shares of no par common stock.

The first mortgage bonds sold originally at $99.50. Today the bond holders are asking $105.504, according to quotations on the local board.

THREE SERVICES

Rev. John Owen Conducts Evangelistic Campaign Here

Rev. John Owen, of Upland, Ind. preached at three special evangelistic services yesterday at Calvary Evangelical Church. Last night he talked on "Sonship in the Kingdom of God," yesterday afternoon and morning on the "Holy Spirit" and Saturday night on "Sanctification."

There were three conversions yesterday.

Other features of last night's service were the two numbers, "Whispering Hope" and "When They Ring Those Golden Bells" by a trombone quartet, and one number, "The Old Faith" by the male quartet. Services are to continue each night this week.

"The highest honor we can know is the honor of sonship in the kingdom of God, we are the sons of God, heirs of God and joint heirs of Christ," said Reverend Owen in his sermon last night. "There is a divine seal upon those who are thus recognized as God's children. Spiritual regeneration or the new birth is the doorway into the spiritual kingdom. We receive the gift of spiritual life through faith in Christ and through the power of the Holy Spirit. The only sonship that promises heaven, peace and blessing beyond the grave, beyond this period of our probation, is the sonship of God. There is a distinction in God's word between those who are the children of God in the spiritual sense and those who are not."

20 CHURCHES WOULD BAN SUNDAY SHOWS

Vote Unanimous Against Open Theaters, Ministerial Secretary Reports

Twenty Marion County Churches have taken a stand as being unanimously opposed to Sunday moving picture shows according to reports given by chairman of the working committees at the meeting of members of the Marion County Ministerial Association this morning at City Library. Not all churches have submitted their vote to date.

Rev. Earl L. Holiday, committee chairman, gave a report on the progress of plans for a union service on Good Friday. A paper on the subject, "Youth, Education and Religion," prepared by Rev. Howard L. Olewiler, pastor of First Presbyterian Church, was read by Rev. James M. Fisher. Rev. Karl W. Patow, pastor of Prospect Street M. E. Church, conducted devotionals and Rev. J. J. Tisdall of Mansfield led in the closing prayer. The next meeting will be in two weeks at the library.

TIP FURNISHED HERE LEADS TO CAPTURE

Man Accused of Mansfield Slaying Traced from Marion to Cincinnati

Roscoe Jackson, negro accused of having slain another negro in Mansfield in a controversy over a five-cent piece, was captured Saturday as the result of a clew obtained by Mansfield authorities in Marion last week.

Jackson was nabbed in Cincinnati, Saturday, and is now in jail at Mansfield awaiting trial. He is accused of having shot down Owen Cooper, another negro, when the latter was unable to pay his assailant a five-cent debt. The killing occurred in Mansfield last Tuesday night.

Hearing that the alleged slayer had headed toward Marion, three Mansfield authorities followed his trail here. They were Sheriff R. A. Schad, Prosecuting Attorney George H. Blecker and Deputy Sheriff H. E. Hamblin.

Arriving here, they learned that Jackson was in the city Wednesday but had disappeared. A local negro informed them that Jackson had relatives in Cincinnati, providing the only clew to his possible whereabouts.

Acts On Hunch

Acting on this hunch, the Mansfield sheriff sent a deputy to Cincinnati, where the fugitive was sighted on the street, Saturday. The deputy enlisted the aid of a city patrolman and the negro was placed under arrest.

While in Marion Wednesday, it was learned, Jackson requested a local negro to buy some cartridges for his gun.

A negro arrested here last week as a suspect in the murder was released, when the Mansfield authorities arrived and found that he was not Jackson.

ASSESSMENT TOTAL ORDERED REDUCED

Common Pleas Judge George B. Scofield Acts in LaVelle Suit

A reduction of $1,142.23 in the total of assessments levied against property owned by Matilda LaVelle on George-st was ordered by Judge Scofield in Court of Common Pleas, today, following a report filed by appraisers named to fix the value of the property.

The assessments were levied in connection with the George-st paving improvement. The total placed against two lots involved in the suit amounted to $1,812.23. The appraisers valued the property at $1,500, and on that basis only $500 can be collected, the law providing that assessments shall not be more than one-third of the valuation figure.

The appraisers report was approved by City Solicitor George T. Gerau, and Judge Scofield issued a permanent injunction to prevent collection of assessments amounting to more than $500.

The appraisers were George J. Orians, J. J. Arthur and C. D. Schaffner.

Residence Sold

A residence property at 490 N. Greenwood-st was sold under mortgage foreclosure by Sheriff Deal, Saturday, to the People's Building, Savings & Loan Co. on its bid of $2,500. The property had been appraised at $2,700. The sale was held on court order issued in the foreclosure suit of the People's Building, Savings & Loan Co. against Kelly H. Smith and others.

Files Answer

James E. Messenger, county treasurer, defendant in a suit brought by A. Lincoln Smith to enjoin collection of the assessment for improvement of Fairground-rd, filed his answer today denying all allegations and asking that the petition be dismissed. The answer was filed through Prosecuting Attorney Wiedemann.

In his suit, Smith alleges that the assessment on his land, amounting to more than $2,000, is unfair and confiscatory.

Motion Filed

Motion for a new trial was filed today by the First National Bank of Napoleon in its suit against Myrtle E. Schindler and G. A. Gelbaugh, heard by a jury in court here last week. The jury returned judgment for $5,000 against Mrs. Schindler but made no findings against Gelbaugh. The suit was brought by the bank on a bond, said to have been signed by Mrs. Schindler and Gelbaugh, guaranteeing the payment of loans.

The motion, filed by James Donovan Jr. of Napoleon and Mouser, Young & Mouser, attorneys for the bank, cites seven alleged errors in the trial proceedings.

Matthias, of Columbus, department commander, who was the principal speaker of the afternoon declared the purpose of the organization was just what its name implied, an organization to boost and further the cause of veterans. He also praised the local camp of Spanish War Veterans for what has been accomplished in building up its organization and expressed pleasure at the spirit of cooperation that is growing up between the veterans of the Civil, Spanish American and World Wars.

An expression of appreciation for the manner in which the visitors were received was given by Judge Charles S. Schaber of Bucyrus in response to a short address of welcome by Sylvester Larkin, chairman of the program committee. Municipal Judge William R. Martin who was scheduled to make the address, was unable to be present.

Other features of the meeting of the auxiliary was the presentation of a prize of $2 to the auxiliary of Tiffin as an award for having the largest percentage of members present. A vocal solo by Ruth McGinnis of Kenton, a reading by Mrs. Margaret Hartlein of Fostoria, a group of piano numbers by Neil Seele, of Toledo, a violin solo by Margaret Hoover accompanied on the piano by Madge O'Brien, and a vocal solo by Mrs. W. C. Michel of Waldo and a reading by Mrs. Robert Michel of Waldo, provided a pleasing variety to the program. One hundred and twenty-five women representing 12 auxiliaries were present.

CRIPPLED CHILDREN GUESTS OF ROTARY

Physical Handicaps Forgotten as Youngsters Mingle with Thoughtful Business Men

Those who are inclined to look upon the world through cold, pessimist eyes and lament the commercialized age, would have been given a new angle had they been present in the ballroom at Hotel Harding at noon today when 16 children, students of the Marion crippled children school, were guests of the Rotary Club at its weekly luncheon.

Large automobiles provided by Rotarians, brought the children from the school in the Olney-av building and discharged the little guests at the Orchard-st entrance of the hotel where they were taken in charge by the kindly Rotarians and assisted to the ballroom on the second floor.

Physical defects were forgotten when 16 small shining faces each chaperoned by a Rotarian, gathered at the long tables and 32 bright eyes lighted up as the luncheon with chicken, as the main feature, was served. Staid, dignified Rotarians leaders in the commercial, professional and manufacturing world, became the thoughtful attendants of the children.

Smallest Guest

Little Thelma Large, six years of age, the newest member of the school, was the smallest guest at the luncheon and was looked after by Rotarain Horace Ballenger. Thelma, however, was interested more in her surroundings than she was in her dinner and it was with considerable coaxing that she could be induced to partake of her luncheon.

A short program including a piano solo, vocal numbers and dialogues, was given by the children at the conclusion of the luncheon.

The program was in charge of James Cooper, chairman of the crippled children committee of the club, and Dr. John A. Dodd. Credit in a very large measure for the success of the school was given Mr. Cooper by Dr. Dodd in a short talk.

Tells of Work

Mrs. Gertrude Lavers, professional masseur of Canton, who visits the school here on Mondays and Thursdays for the purpose of giving treatments to the children told of the methods used and what had been accomplished in the treatment of the various defects.

Appreciation for the help of the club in making the school a success was expressed by Miss Rhea King, teacher. She took the opportunity of thanking the members of the club for the bookcase which recently was added to the equipment of the school and also for the milk that is supplied the children each day by the club.

Mr. and Mrs. Alva Rosebrough, 1029 Bellefontaine-av, are parents of a son born this morning.

Thought it came from Shaving

"For many months," writes a man in New York, "I was bothered with an extremely cloudy complexion. I always seemed to have pimples or blackheads. Often large blotches would appear, and I thought it came from shaving. Then someone recommended Resinol. I put it on at night, and within a few days was surprised to find that my face had completely cleared up." Resinol brings quick relief. You try it. At all druggists.

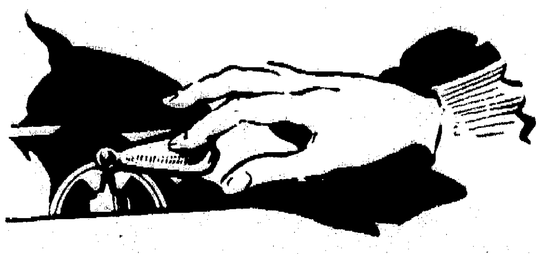
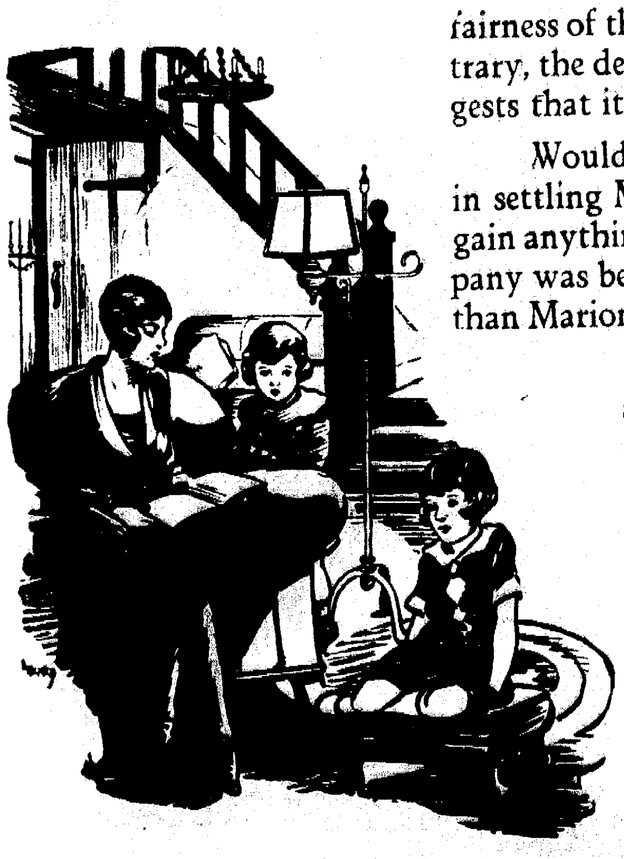
Do You Expect to Pay Less Than Others Pay For Gas Service?



The Public Utilities Commission of Ohio in settling the Kenton rate case of the West Ohio Gas Company authorized rates considerably higher than those asked for by the Logan Gas Company of the city of Marion.

The Commission's decision specifically refers to the Logan Gas Company's rate request by saying that this company "does not even ask for more than $1.00 for the first 500 cubic feet or less and 60 cents net per thousand cubic feet thereafter."



There is no question raised as to the reasonableness or fairness of the gas rates asked by your company. On the contrary, the decision of the Commission in the Kenton case suggests that it is an example of fairness and reasonableness.

Would this seem to justify a delay of nearly four years in settling Marion's rate? Does it suggest that Marion may gain anything by further delay? Doesn't it look like the company was being more liberal and fair with the city of Marion than Marion was being with it's Gas Servant?

Is there any particular reason why Marion should have a favored rate as compared with other cities? Can it be expected that the Gas Company would have the same incentive to develop its service for Marion as for the large majority of other cities and towns paying the higher rate?

Will you help us settle this matter? Will you call upon your city officials to act promptly and fairly on this question? They ask only the encouragement of your support and your Gas Company asks only what is right?

THE FRANK BROS. CO.

City Water Now Reduced to Proper Degree of Softness

Marion's city water has now been reduced to 12 degrees of hardness, the point specified in the franchise granted the Marion Water Co. by the city, it was announced today by George Whysall, general manager of the company.

When first turned into the lines the hardness had been reduced from 42 to 26 degrees. With a gradual adjusting of the softening process, the hardness has been reduced to the 12 degrees provided for in the franchise which is only a few degrees harder than rain water.

Soda ash and lime automatically fed into two huge mixing tanks of 575,000 gallons each, serve as the medium for removing the lime from the water as it comes from the wells. The removal of the lime brings about the softening of the water. The degree of softness depends up to a certain point, upon the amount of the two ingredients added to the water. Beyond this point, however, nothing would be gained by adding more of the mixture as it would be impossible to bring the water beyond a certain point of softness.

Copper Tanks

Two huge copper-bottom tanks, with a capacity of 210 tons each, hold the lime and soda ash which is fed automatically into the two mixing tanks from where it is sent by means of a "still well" into the first settling tank. The "still well," which carries the water up from the bottom of the tank similar to an artesian well, is used to eliminate as far as possible any unnecessary stirring of the water.

A scraping device in the bottom of this huge settling tank, which has a capacity of 2,000,000 gallons, is turning constantly as the lime and soda ash carries with it to the bottom, a major part of the natural lime from the water.

From this huge tank the water is carried to a second settling tank of the same capacity, but which is not equipped with a scraper. The water is also fed into this tank by means of a "still well." After being allowed to settle for a time in this tank, the water is carried to a carbonating tank from where it flows into the large reservoirs ready for pumping to the city. The total cost of the plant, according to figures given by Mr. Whysall, was approximately $165,000.

URGES SIMPLIFIED VACCINATION METHOD

New Procedure Now Used by Many Physicians Known as "Puncture"

Cleveland, March 19—A simplified method of vaccination, which reduces the scar and lessens possibility of infection is now being used by a majority of physicians, according to a recent statement of Dr. G. W. Moorehouse, chief of the bureau of Communicable Diseases here.

The new procedure is known as the "puncture."

Under the old method, a physician made one or two scratches on the arm, each scratch about an inch in length. This usually left scars of about the same length.

"In the new method," Dr. Moorehouse declared, "a drop of vaccine is placed on the spot desired. A sharp needle is then place against the spot at an angle and about 80 tiny scratches are made, all within a square area of approximately three-eighths of an inch.

"In the common usage of the word, the new method is not a "scratch," as care is taken to prevent drawing of blood and merely to penetrate the lymph spaces in the outer skin," Dr. Moorehouse said.

"Usually the scar which results is only about three-eighths of an inch square," Dr Moorehouse continued. "After the scratches have been made, the excess vaccine is wiped off. It is unnecessary to place any dressing on the spot."

The medical profession disapproves the use of tight dressings after vaccination, Dr. Moorehouse said. "The best dressing, if any is required," he concluded, "is a light piece of gauze, held in place by a small piece of adhesive tape."

MANY END COLDS IN FEW HOURS BY HOSPITAL METHOD

Doctors Recommend It as Ideal for Home Use in Pneumonia Weather

Realizing that every common cold may be the forerunner of pneumonia—unless treated properly in time—physicians have chosen a remedy that is ideal for use at home. And numbers of Marion people find that it brings quick, sure relief—often in a few hours—yet is inexpensive and pleasant to take.

Mrs. H. E. Giddis, for instance, had such a stuffy cold she couldn't breathe through her nose and coughed so deep she feared pneumonia. Then she sought advice from her doctor who prescribed double strength doses of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral—a concentrated mixture of wild cherry, terpin hydrate and other ingredients which have relieved even the most extreme hospital cases.

Relief began with the first pleasant swallow. She felt its comforting, healing warmth from her nose passages deep down into her chest. In a few hours she began to get relief from that "feverish, groggy" feeling. By night she coughed less and was able to breathe through her nose. And in another day or so, the doctor reports, she was rid of the cold completely.

Note: See other cases—all certified to this paper by the attending physician.

Doctors find that this hospital medicine does far than stop coughing instantly. It penetrates and heals inflamed linings of the breathing passages. Absorbed by the system it quickly reduces phlegm, helps allay that "feverish" grippy feeling and drives out the cold from the nose passages, throat and chest.

Just a few pleasant spoonfuls of Cherry Pectoral now and you'll feel like a diffrent person tomorrow. At all druggists, 60c; twice as much in $1.00 hospital size.

More Information—

To those of you who have been thinking about replacing some of your no-longer-desirable furniture pieces, or suites, for something that is more up-to-the-minute in design and style, perhaps a brief outline of how to go about doing so will be of interest.

All that is necessary for you to do is to come to the store, see for yourself if we have on our floors the new furniture you wish to purchase, and if our price is what you have in mind paying. If this is all satisfactory to you, then we send our appraisal man to your home, and he will tell you just how much we can allow for your used pieces.

If your new purchase is a cash transaction, we pay you back the amount allowed, in cash. If it is an extended-payment transaction, the amount allowed is accepted as payments.

There is no difference in the price of the new furniture, if there is a "trade-in" or not. No difference in the credit terms. A very simple proposition and that is why it is so popular.

An Appreciation

We came to Marion because this Community and Vicinity needed and wanted a higher type family Credit Clothing Store. We were convinced that the people were unusually keen judges of values! particularly when they could purchase them on a new dignified credit plan! Never in our history have we had such crowds at the opening of one of our new stores—and not shoppers mind you, but buyers! We thank all of you who were able to be waited upon, and the thousands upon thousands that it was physically impossible to serve. To the latter we offer

An Apology

Thousands of men and women, accompanied by every member of their families, visited the store to make purchases of spring outfits, and could not. We confess we underestimated the number of family shoppers. The unprecedented crowds, mob-like in appearances, seriously threatened the breaking of show windows and we regret the necessity that left us no other choice but to call in Officer Chapman to guard the doors with instructions to allow only as many to enter as departed. We particularly wish to apologize to those that we were unable to wait upon, and we offer our assurances that our organization of salespeople will be increased to comfortably and courteously serve the needs of those who tried to buy but could not, and who, appreciating the impossibility of seemingly trying to serve all Marion and adjacent communities at one and the same time, will return this week to purchase newer styles, greater values on a newer, more dignified credit plan.

We publicly want to compliment the Police Department of Marion upon the splendid co-operation and efficiency displayed in handling the unheard of crowds which seriously threatened to demolish our show windows and doors.

The American Federation of Musicians is said to have inaugurated a campaign for a fund of $10,000,000 with which to battle their employers. If the musicians are able to raise a fund like that, why should they worry about battling anybody?

Still, it will not do to hold the aeroplane, in itself, responsible for all the deaths resulting from its use. Many of those who use it are not wholly unlike the motorist who tries to beat the train to the crossing.

Director Tondorf, of Georgetown university, can hardly be blamed for not locating the center of violence of last Friday's earthquake, which was of greater intensity than any ever before noted on the university seismograph. It seems to have been felt all the way from Greece, across the Atlantic and the United States, to Santa Maria, California.

"Prince!" was the one word spoken with electrifying effect on a giant black-maned lion down in the Cincinnati zoo, one day last week, as the speaker stepped inside the cage of the big cat, which showed his delight by acting like an ecstatic kitten. Prince remembered the voice, though unheard by him for years, it was that of Heinrich Hagenbeck, the famous animal trainer of Hamburg, his one-time master. Yes, animals remember.

A thousand alleged communists were arrested last Friday in Japan and evidence secured by the Japanese authorities is reported by Tokio to justify serious consideration by Japan of severing relations with soviet Russia. If the present trend continues much longer, the soviets will find themselves without a friend, the world over.

The United States public health service figures that this country will have a population of 200,000,000 by 2000. But about everybody will be flying by that time, and there will not be occasion for the local city authorities to worry so greatly about the style of traffic lights to be installed.

A Cleveland judge has sentenced a woman plaintiff in a divorce proceeding before him to one year in the Marysville reformatory for contempt of court, in that she committed perjury while testifying. What! Is it possible that parties to divorce proceedings are no longer to be permitted to swear falsely? Isn't this a bit revolutionary?

Senator Norris, of Nebraska, has asked the Federal Trade commission to investigate the purchase of newspapers in California and Illinois by Ira C. Copley, of the latter state, in connection with its inquiry into the financing of public utility power corporations, as Copley was formerly interested in public utility corporations, holding that a chain of newspapers would be a "menace" if controlled by public utility interests. It would be interesting to have the senator's view on the amount of influence a chain of papers owned by public utility corporations could wield.

For Women and Girls.

The articles by Dr. Royal S. Copeland run daily on this page of the Star should prove of special interest to every woman and girl reader, this week, for all of them, not including that in this issue, treat on subjects which appeal to womanhood—health and beauty.

During the week Dr. Copeland will treat on beauty in a way somewhat different from that in which it is usually handled. He will give his idea of what constitutes real beauty, and how it may be attained, if attainment is at all possible. He will show that one must have more than beautiful features to pass as beautiful; that more than a doll face is necessary and he will treat of qualities possible to womanhood of far more attractive power than beauty of features. He will tell why women, whose features, separately considered, are far from perfect, have proved far more interesting to men and have had more of an influence on world history than the "Dumb Doras."

And the doctor will go at some length into the subject of dieting, what is proper and what improper dieting, and the grave danger which lurks in improper dieting. In fact, in many forms of dieting and certain other methods followed "to reduce" there is not only probable danger, the doctor holds, but the absolute certainty that ill-effects will result.

The five articles are so plainly and simply stated, so understandable and reasonable, that they should carry conviction to many women and girls who have been sinning against their bodies, and thus against their health, by following reducing methods in violation of sense and reason and the laws of nature.

We believe the articles in question will prove profitable reading for all women and girls.

Great Peace-Time Movement.

Backed by Secretary of War Davis and many officers of the army in high command, American legion officials are reported to be mobilizing their forces for what is said will prove the greatest peace time movement ever attempted in this country in the interest of legislation providing for the universal drafting of man power and the control of labor and industry in the event of another war.

The legion officials will not attempt to push the Capper-Johnson bill as it is now written. Six attempts to pass similar legislation have failed utterly. On only two occasions since the war have hearings been held on draft bills and in neither of these instances were the forces behind the bills able to bring them to a vote. Congress is not ready for such legislation, those behind it have been warned. Its opponents say any such legislation will be defeated because labor is opposed to legislation which might permit the conscription of labor in wartime. In other words, congressmen are afraid of the labor vote. It is said that even the congressmen favorable to the universal draft principle have warned the legionnaires that the Capper-Johnson measure can not be passed at this session of congress.

Under the bills in question, introduced in the senate by Capper, of Kansas, and in the house by Johnson, of South Dakota, the president would be given power in event of war to "draft into the service of the United States such members of the organized militia as he may deem necessary; provided, that all persons drafted into service between the ages of twenty-one and thirty, or such other limits as the president may fix, shall be drafted without exception on account of industrial occupation."

The president would be "authorized to take such steps as may be necessary to stabilize prices of all commodities declared to be essential," and "to determine and proclaim the material resources, industrial organizations and services over which government control is necessary to the successful termination of such emergency."

Aside from restrictions mentioned above, the president would have power to set up the necessary administrative machinery and decide who would be exempted. Under the old selective service act certain classes were excused from service under the draft law and sponsors for the universal draft say virtually the same classes would be under the new plan.

During the congressional hearing on the Johnson bill of 1924, Representative Johnson said "our theory of drafting the present bill—1924—was that immediately upon the declaration of war every man, woman and child in the country would be considered as having been conscripted into the service. Any one who would violate the provisions of this law would be courtmartialed."

The Johnson bill of 1924 has been changed, however. Legion officials say there would be no conscription of labor or industry—that control would be sufficient. They would provide however, "that the entire man power of the country, without stint or limitation, must be subject to the call of the country for military or industrial service."

But, being assured that neither the Capper-Johnson measure nor any similar measure can be passed through congress at this time, or in the near future, for the reason that it has the opposition of labor and the further reason that congress is opposed to granting dictatorial powers to a president in times of peace for wartime use, the legionnaires propose to follow another course. Just what their plan may be is not known, but the belief is strong in Washington that it looks to the education of the people of the land to the need of such legislation. The legionnaires, it is thought, plan to demonstrate that such legislation should be enacted in time of peace and not in time of war, when all legislation is naturally hurried; that they plan to show the unfairness of the draft legislation employed in the World war, under which men were forced to expose their lives for $30 a month abroad while other men received from $10 to $30 a day for the labor they performed here at home. Summed up, the legionnaires and those behind them realize that, before congress will act, the plan of conscription of man power and the control of labor and resources must be sold to the country.

And why not? Why should not the manpower of the country, the resources of the country, the industries of the country, the capital of the country, be made to bear alike the burden of any war into which the land may be forced? Why should some of the young men of the country be forced to give up their occupations and fight for a dollar a day, while those who remain at home profit by war?

In an editorial attack upon Will Hays, the Minneapolis Journal says that he, as chairman of the Republican national committee, spent money with "juvenile lavishness" in the presidential campaign of 1920, making it the "most extravagant campaign on record." Let us keep the facts straight. The Republican campaign expenditures of 1920 were $4,022,580, which was $336,899 less than those of 1924, just $5,477,420 less than those of the campaign of 1900 and $12,477,420 less than those of 1896.

Vagrant Verse.

PEBBLE-JEWELS.

'Tis up the hill and down the hill the little road goes running,
You'd call its pebbles jewels and its sands a virgin gold,
But to me who dwell beside it, and do scout that I deride it,
'Tis but decked out with tinsel as a giant has unrolled.

This gaily smiling little road that everywhere goes a-running,
It scampers through the valleys and it climbs the fretting town,
But 'tis told the thistle meets it and is found among nightshade greets it
While farther on the saffron sky shows where the sun went down.

Up set me by my small stone by the wide the road goes running,
Nor trust the lying promises it flings to me each day,
For a dragon waits to catch it and some day his claws will snatch it
And carry off the little road into his cavern gray.

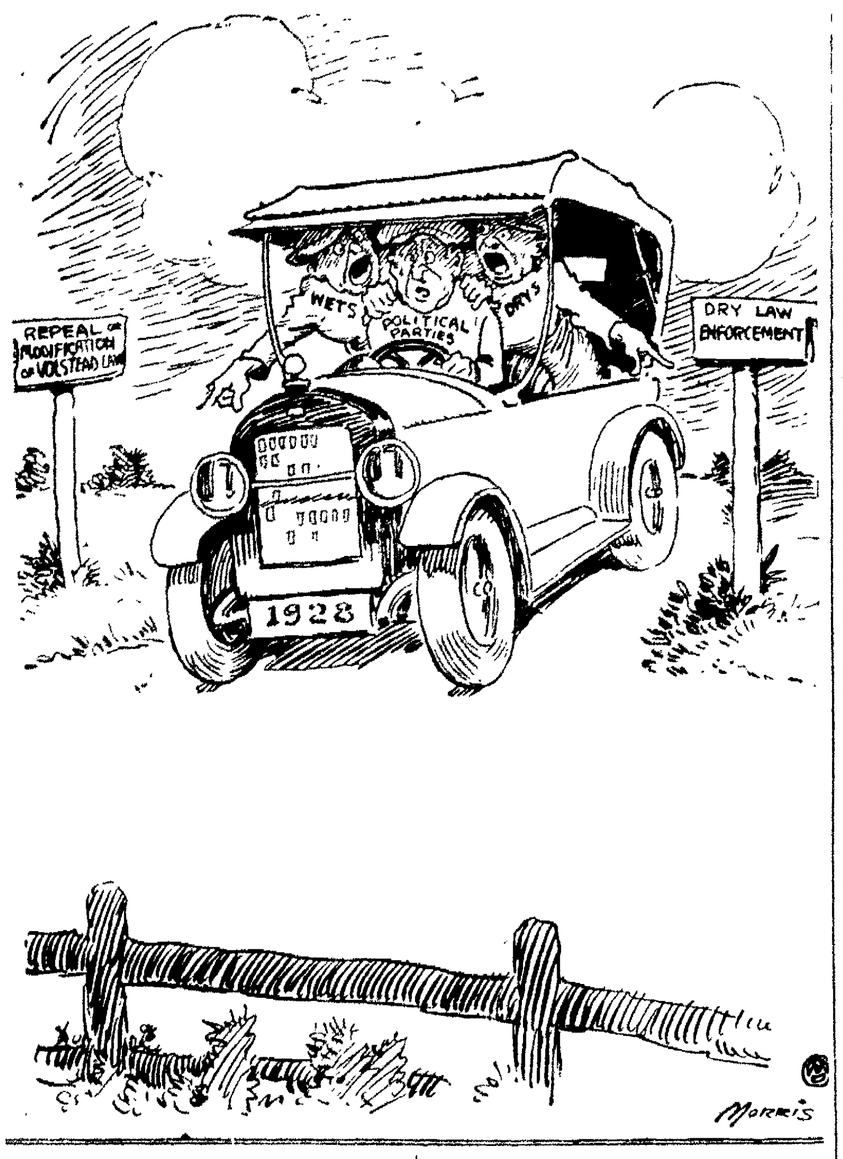
"GOSH! ONE BACK SEAT DRIVER IS BAD ENOUGH!"



Don't Get into a Panic.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

A few days ago a Pittsburgh man wrote me in a panic of fear because somebody told him he had "lenticular opacities" in his eyes. He says he is thirty years old and in perfect health with one exception.

The only thing the doctors could find, the letter states, is "a fairly bad pair of tonsils." He doesn't say how they are diseased, but if they give evidence of pus cavities, they are unsafe possessions.

But about these "lenticular opacities." The chances are they have been in existence all through the life of this young man. Something drove him to the oculist and on examination these spots were found.

The crystalline lens of the eye is situated just back of the pupil and iris, the colored part of the eye. In normal eyes we do not expect to find any opacity; the lens should be as clear and transparent as a perfectly clean spectacle lens.

In old age, or at least past middle age, it is not uncommon to find degenerative changes in the lens. The normal transparency disappears and the lens becomes milky and clouded. This is a condition called cataract.

Then we have a similar loss of transparency, noticed immediately upon the birth of a baby. This is called congenital cataract.

Between birth and middle age we rarely meet any disturbance in the clearness of the crystalline lens. When we do discover by accident that there are spots of opacity in the lens, we conclude that they have always been there. This presence need give us no concern.

The crystalline lens develops five or six months before the baby is born. If the mother has a severe illness at that time or is badly run down in health, it may happen that the nourishment of the developing eye is interfered with and opacities may form.

Without knowing any more than I do about the case of the man who wrote me from Pittsburgh, this seems to me to be the reasonable explanation of his "lenticular opacities." He is no worse off than he always has been, except that he has been told he has these defects. Now he is worrying over something that can't be helped and something that will never be any worse. He might as well worry over a mole on his nose or a freckle on the left cheek. His opacities are no more serious than either of these.

By the way, of all the serious troubles one can have, I think real cataract, not the harmless lenticular opacities we have just discussed, is about the most satisfactory. Under a local anaesthetic, with a perfectly painless operation taking about two minutes, the cataract is removed and sight restored. It is a never failing wonder to me that blindness can be so easily overcome.

Now, by dear Pittsburgh friend, go get married—he asked if I thought he should "abolish the thought of marriage." Forget your troubles and don't worry over these opacities any more than you do over the white spots in your finger nails.

One thought to be remembered in any discussion of "companionate marriage," of which Judge Lindsey talks, is that it is not a new idea. Read your history carefully and you know that practically every form of domestic life has been tried at different periods throughout the ages. We have had free love, plural marriage, polyandry—several men marrying one woman—wife lending and easy divorce. Everything that man has so far been smart enough to think has been tried. Nothing has appeared so sound, to the best minds, as the much-criticized monogamy. We shall probably have it for some time to come.

The Mussolini party in Italy is trying to make the aristocrats, the high-hats, go to work. Aristocracy is irritated at the charge that its members are idle and useless. Not much will come of trying to force them to go to work. But something can be done with the generation growing up. The main thing is to teach boys and girls to love work and sense the value of it—to themselves and to the community.

It would be a fine thing for the rank and file of us to know just what the true issues of a campaign are. Some issues are put together to sell and some are real and honest. Some grow naturally and have a place in the thinking of voters, and some are just bugaboos trotted out from behind the door.

Comes Governor Bulow, of South Dakota, who says the farmers of the Northwest don't need relief. How to relieve the farmers worries politicians who are grooming candidates. A good, serviceable candidate is supposed, above everything else, to know how to relieve the farmers of the "Great Northwest." Perhaps the voters would like to know just what it is the farmers want.

What every political campaign needs is some sort of "detector" which will indicate for us just where sense and soundness leave off and bunk begins. Trust candidates to have something to talk about. What we want to know is: what does it mean?

Wouldn't it be a fine thing to have a small committee of the wisest men of the realm sit down and tell us honestly what the real issues are?

If the voter knew, he might be trusted to act with at least fair, if not extraordinary, intelligence.

Editorial Opinion.

THOSE SINCLAIR BONDS.

Speaking of consideration for propriety and good taste, even in politics, there's the charming spectacle of Senator Walsh, of Montana, an avowed candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, taking advantage of his position as member of an inquisitorial committee to ask Secretary Mellon and Chairman Butler, of the Republican national committee, preayunish questions about their silence with respect to the effort of Will H. Hays to induce them to take over certain Liberty bonds contributed by Mr. Sinclair as a subscription toward cleaning up the 1920 Republican campaign deficit. If there was any reason why Mr. Walsh should ask some of the queries he put except a desire to dig up something that might possibly be twisted into a campaign point against the Republicans this year, it does not appear on the surface. Anybody but a senator would have known from the beginning that Mr. Mellon and Mr. Butler did not immediately but everything they know about Mr. Hays's endeavor to leave the Republican organization without debt when he withdrew from active politics, because they have put away childish things and are mature men, and have acquired a habit of minding their own business. There was nothing criminal about what Mr. Hays did, and whatever Mr. Mellon and Mr. Butler may have thought about the wisdom of the methods he used, they distinctly were not called upon to turn themselves into animated yellow journals.

Whether Mr. Hays used good judgment in accepting a large contribution from Mr. Sinclair, in view of the oil investigation in progress when it was received, and what excuse or reason for covering up the fact that he had received a large subscription was commendable, are different matters. There is no reason to suppose that belated publication of that little episode in the political history of the country is provoking public applause for the central figures. But, on the other hand, it is all history. None of those concerned in the transactions surrounding the effort of the Republican chairman of 1920 to liquidate the Harding campaign debts are now actively connected with the management or guidance of the Republican party, and it seems rather silly politics on the part of Mr. Walsh et al to try to manufacture from a closed page of history a scandal to do yeoman service in their behalf in the present campaign. However, if they like to do that sort of thing, it is their privilege, and they are entirely to busy anyhow except themselves.—Detroit Free Press.

Moon and Earth.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

"Do you think the moon was destroyed by volcanoes and not by meteors? It has such an appearance. The earth has volcanoes, as the moon had, and quite as many. It shows the great internal heat. Is it not likely that volcanoes will some time destroy this earth as the moon has been destroyed? T. E. O., Woodland."

Nobody knows what may eventually happen to this old earth of ours, and least of all does anybody pretend to know. There is plenty of theories, some of them called scientific, on the subject, but facts on which to base a settled opinion are lacking. It is an opinion of some geologists that the future of the earth, if not its past, may be inferred from what we see on the moon. Professor J. W. Gregory says, on this subject:

"The aspect of the moon indicates the probable future of the earth when by continual cooling of the interior the crust has become much thicker and more rigid. It's—the moon's—condition forecasts the state of the earth at some future time when its relief will be due almost entirely to vertical movements, as the crumpling of belts of the crust will have ceased, and when horsts—areas that have remained standing while the surrounding region has sunk—and sunklands due to faulting and valleys due to subsidence instead of to erosion will be the dominant features in the topography."

That the surface of the moon has been destroyed in the most frightful fashion, nobody can doubt who looks at it with a powerful telescope. The enormous ring-shaped depressions that have generally been called lunar volcanoes bear only a superficial resemblance to the volcanic craters of the earth.

They are not situated on the tops, or flanks, of mountains, but are vast depressions in the lunar surface encircled with precipitous walls that rise in many cases two or three miles above the interior floor, but only to a relative slight height above the general level of the moon outside. Our volcanic craters are toys beside such lunar monsters as "Copernicus," "Tycho," or "Theophilus." The relative size of the huge volcanic chasm in Oregon named "Crater Lake," one of the grandest phenomena of the kind in the world, a rocky caldron six miles long by four wide is small compared with the stupendous crater of "Copernicus" on the moon, which is fifty-six miles in diameter and 12,000 feet deep.

Professor Gregory thinks that these immense depressions on the moon were formed by "subsidences" arising from the fact that the moon, early acquired a thicker crust, less easily folded than that of the earth, so that the contraction of the cooling interior resulted in vertical instead of horizontal movements of the crust. And this is the fate which he suggests that the moon foretells for the earth when the reign of "horsts" and "sunklands" and valleys due to subsidence begins upon our less rapidly cooling globe.

Judged by the telescopic aspect of the moon, such a fate would be frightful, almost beyond imagination. But there is a consideration perhaps of some value in connection with this, viz., that the gigantism of the topographical features of the lunar world may be due principally to the slight force of gravity there—only one-sixth as great as on the earth. Where all things are relatively so light, the distorting effect of geological forces may be proportionally conspicuous. But, at the best, it is to be hoped that the earth will undergo no such experience as long as it remains the home of Adam's descendants. — Copyright, 1928, International Feature Service, Inc.

Speaking of Ciro's.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

March 19 — Ciro's is perhaps [illegible] and certainly the most expensive restaurant in Paris. It is one of those [illegible] exclusive for the masses, stag[illegible] in Rue Daunou, a few steps off [illegible] Paris. A tiny sign traces the name [illegible] pink.

The cafe is owned by an English syndicate, the manager wearing a monocle and [illegible] rose usually graces the entrance. The head waiter, Julien, has a bowing acquaintance with all European royalty. He speaks [illegible] every language, including a little Hottentot, is rich, and a trifle haughty.

To enter the main dining-rooms one must go through a tiny bar where it is customary for both ladies and gentlemen to stand a few on the tall for an aperitif. You are expected to tip the bartender at least ten per cent of your bill. If you don't the word goes around the restaurant. It is a testing station.

There are two dining-rooms—one close and intimate and to the right a larger room. If you are a favored guest or a person of importance you are seated in the small room. But if the head waiter regards you as a nobody you are piloted to the larger.

There is the story of the newly-rich American who had been placed in the small room near the entrance to the larger. From his chair he could see there were more people in the big room, so he called a waiter captain and gave him a mille franc and asked to be transferred there. He was.

Dinner at Ciro's starts at 9 o'clock, but by 11 it is almost deserted. It is the most patronized luncheon place in Paris. But among those who mingle with Americans and the English, a Parisian never goes there. He knows cafes as smart and good at half price.

One often sees an American negro in evening dress dining at Ciro's, also gentlemen in jeweled turbans and robes, as well as a sprinkling of the registered demi-monde. France tolerates no racial or class prejudice on part of cafe-keepers. Food at Ciro's is priced about the same as in swank New York places. Only wines and liquors seem dear.

Around the livery stable back home Jimmy Welch used to ask the boys as we passed on the way to school if we ever saw a horse actress. Well, one did at Le Bourget. A vaudeville actress hit upon the idea of carrying her trained horse to London by plane. It required exactly four hours to get the frightened squealing animal into the compartment built for it. This was accomplished by two cowpunchers who have not yet started home from the legion meeting. The poor animal was tightly strapped in place and it arrived safely. It was a cruel performance and an actress has no right to own a horse.

The announcement came at the close of a conference between the governor and Harper.

Touching upon the question of wages paid prison guards, Harper told newspaper men today he felt that the law of supply and demand regulated the compensation paid these guards. He declared that there is "a long waiting list" of applicants for employment as guards. Harper said that if it developed that additional guards were necessary, that situation could be disposed of promptly through the employment of additional men.

"Peter Pan" Will Be

NEWS OF MOVIES IN CINEMA CAPITAL

Barrie's "Mary Rose"

BY LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Star Staff Correspondent

LOS ANGELES, March 17—"Hello, Peter Pan. When are you going to play 'Mary Rose?'" said J. M. Barrie, shaking hands with Betty Bronson and smiling into the eyes of the little girl who epitomized his idea of the boy who never grew up.

"Mary Rose?" faltered Betty. Then Sir James Barrie told her that an English company had spoken of producing his play and that he had suggested her for the part. Not having an astral body, I'd better explain this conversation was repeated in a letter received yesterday.

* * *

"CAN you stay over here and play 'Mary Rose?'" Barrie asked Betty. She told him she would rather play "Mary Rose" than any other character on the screen, but that she wanted to make it in America.

"Why don't you?" asked Barrie. That little bit of encouragement was all Betty needed. She is now on her way back to this country, determined to get an American director to produce not only "Mary Rose," but "Alice-Sit-by-the-Fire" as well.

"Mary Rose," one of the most ethereal of the Barrie plays, was brought to the stage by Ruth Chatterton. There is a psychic note in it and a touch of the supernatural that is fascinating and delightful, but it will have to be produced with the utmost care to maintain its delicacy.

SNAPSHOTS of Hollywood collected at random:

Charlie Paddock walking along the boulevard with a pretty girl, not Bebe Daniels. She wore a corsage of gardenias.

Charlie Chaplin eating some of Henry's specialities with a relish.

Wallace Beery in the same restaurant sampling some of the popular cookery. You can always find Hun people where the food is good.

Claire Windsor hurrying to keep a luncheon engagement.

A man on Hollywood-blvd. holding an umbrella to catch the three drops of rain that fell.

Lloyd Pantages' car parked in front of the Fox Company.

A little bit of the footlights at the De Mille studios, where John Boles and Katherine Crawford did an impromptu song and dance.

* * *

CAMILLA HORN, the girl with the complicated German accent, seems to draw parts that put her opposite Ronald's most desirable leading men.

She has moved to the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot, where she will lend feminine interest to Ramon Novarro's next picture.

Just a word about this Ramon Novarro opus. Some time ago, you remember, he starred in "A Certain Young Man." It did not meet with the approval of Louis B. Mayer and the other powers that be at M. G. M. In other words, it was not up to the standard they expected of Novarro's pictures. So it was put away on a shelf and forgotten.

Now the story has been dragged out from its hiding place and Robert Leonard, who has in the last few years become one of the best comedy directors in the country, will brighten up the dark corners with a little humor, and give the picture a new twist. The story is there, and with old Doc Leonard it should come out a different film.

Mighty good films have come from bad beginnings.

DOLORES DEL RIO'S next assignment shouldn't be so hard to take. She left with Edwin Carewe Sunday on his yacht Lipsy from the Los Angeles harbor, bound for Mexico. Mr. Carewe, who is just out of the hospital, chartered a yacht for two reasons, one to give himself a needed vacation, the other to get some shots of Mexico for "Revenge," Miss Del Rio's next picture for United Artists.

The party will make exteriors in a little fishing village, Chantzemonzin. Don't try to pronounce it, because you can't. Anyway, it's on the coast of Mexico, where fishing is said to be good; also the scenery.

This will be the first time Dolores Del Rio has set foot on her native soil since Edwin Carewe singled her out as a girl with screen possibilities and brought her to Los Angeles. Needless to remark on her meteoric rise to stardom.

NO international treaty was ever conducted with more telegrams, more conferences and more heated discussions than the purchase of the "Odessey of Jimmy Callahan" by Warner Brothers. This "Odessey" play, from the pen of John B. Hymer, was not a particularly glaring stage sensation in New York, but it had all the requisites for an Al Jolson Vitaphone feature and Jack Warner was determined to own it.

In this film business, once dickering starts on a play, the price rises higher and higher and higher until it is out of all proportion. But Jack was a diplomat. He approached his subject carefully and with wariness.

* * *

ALL news of Al Jolson's next was whispered as "The Small-Timer" the name that Warners thought they might give "The Odessey of Jimmy Callahan." Now that the deal is finished, I suppose it is all right to mention Jack Warner's diplomacy and the fact that Al Jolson returns to Hollywood in about a month to begin work on his next Vitaphone.

"If you liked 'The Jazz Singer'," Jack Warner says, "prepare to repeat your admiration for the next Jolson picture, which will have even more Vitaphone, more songs and more lines."

IF the golf scenes in "Green Grass Widows" come in for any criticism, Tiffany-Stahl can give the reviewers the merry ha ha.

They have engaged no less an authority than Walter Hagen to play the stellar role. Mr. Hagen celebrates St. Patrick's Day by returning to Hollywood to make plans for this golf special. This will be the first of a series of golf pictures to be produced by this company.

What with bridge, golf, tennis and what not, being explained on the screen, I am not so sure but that eventually we will have these sports being taught via the movies.

SCHOOL MUSICAL IS ATTENDED BY 1,000

Bucyrus Grade Pupils Present Program in Auditorium

Bucyrus, March 19—Over 1,000 persons attended the grade school musical held at the high school auditorium Sunday afternoon. In the addition to the program given by the children of the grades there were three selections by the high school.

A new grand piano was given by the school and presented by Superintendent H. C. Deitrich. H. C. Cook, president of the board of education, gave a reply of acceptance. The piano was used for the program. After the presentation of the gift, Lincoln school's first grade orchestra, in costume, played the "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers" and "The Tin Pan Parade."

The high school Girls' Glee Club sang "By the Waters of Minnetonka." Edwin Brat, a high school student, followed with two piano selections.

The first grades sang a group of four numbers, "The Windmill," "The Clown," "Tom, the Piper's Son," and "Georgie, Porgie" which were also cleverly pantomimed. Following Genola Hollenbaugh, another high school student, played a piano selection. "The Swing Song," "Umbrella Man" and "Snow" were sung and given in pantomime by the second grades. Winifred Kibler, a grade school pupil, pleasingly played "The Butterfly." Three songs, "The Pop Corn Man," "Winter Roses" and "The Recipe" were sung by the third grade pupils.

The fourth grade sang "The Top," "What Professor Owl Knows," "A Trip to the Moon," and "Algerian Lullaby." "The Arkansas Traveler" was sung by the sixth grade boys. Fifth grade pupils sang two part songs, "The Echo," "Birds' Return," "Dreams" and "Salute to the Flag." Miss Jone Hertzler, principal of Crawford school, delightfully played a violin solo, "To Spring."

The singing of four, two part songs, "Slumber, Slumber" and "Fisherman's "Mandolin Song," "Cossack Song," Prayer" by sixth grades were the final numbers on the program. With the singing of America by the audience, the entertainment was brought to a close.

Mrs. H. A. Pirnstill, music director of the grades, with the cooperation of the grade teachers, planned and directed the program.

The proceeds from the offering taken during an intermission, together with other sums from past musical concerts, will be applied on the purchase of the new piano.

Dr. Royal S. Copeland, U. S. Senator from New York and Ex-Health Commissioner of New York City, is a recognized national authority on public health.

"Mineral waters of the right sort are preferable to many cathartic compounds. Their power to overcome the immediate effects of constipation is unquestioned. In their effects upon the bowel and its lining membranes they are far less irritating. Indeed, many have qualities that make them soothing and healing. Sugar-coated pills are pleasant to take, which may add to their danger. They are no less habit-forming and drastic because they appeal to the taste."

Pluto Water, with its mineral content, flushes the bowels and washes away impurities. It is gentle, soothing, healing, non-habit-forming. Corrects constipation and restores normal bowel movements. Acts in 30 minutes to 2 hours.

Meditations OF A Married Woman

BY HELEN ROWLAND

A MAN'S favorite brand of love is brand new love.

• • •

The Younger Set appear to regard marriage as a sort of endurance test, in which the one who can prove that he or she suffers most, wins the prize.

• • •

Mix a pound of vanity with an ounce of passion and a handful of impertinence, and you have what the modern man calls "love."

• • •

Philander says, "A true philanthropist is one who always carries a folder of matches in his pocket for the use of his friends who got cigar-lighters for Christmas."

• • •

When a man actually does the proposing, these days, his words should be taken down by a stenographer and placed in the local museum along with the other rare and archaic curios.

• • •

Dr. Warthin, the Michigan scientist, would abolish all love and emotion from marriage, and reduce mating to a cold-blooded sex proposition—and it looks as though he would soon get his way!

• • •

It is quite a while before a girl realizes that a man's "Forever!" means merely, "Until I get tired"; and still longer before she learns that his "Never!" means "Not until the next time!"

• • •

If Companionate Marriage works out, a man will have a chance to "turn in the old wreck" and get a brand new model wife every few years. And won't the girls who have seen their best days just love THAT!

• • •

No woman is actually forty until she has had at least half a dozen "thirty-ninth birthdays."

• • •

A man's ideal wife is one in whose society he can spend a whole evening without noticing it.

"Two months ago I determined to give Peterson's Ointment a trial. The improvement was so decided after using one box, that I have continued, and on the completion of the fifth box, am now entirely cured.

"This is written with the view of passing along the good word to other sufferers." Very truly yours, Chas. E. Caswell.

DISCUSSES TRIP

Supt. Jesse H. Mason Addresses South Side Club

A talk upon his trip abroad last summer illustrated with pictures and in which he gave an interesting comparison of the school system of Belgium with that of the United States, was given by Supt. Jesse H. Mason at a meeting of the South Side Community Club held at the Pearl-st school building Friday night.

The one vast difference between the school systems of the two countries, Superintendent Mason told his audience, is that in Belgium after a child has become five years of age, the age that he enters school, he becomes a ward of the state and everything that is done for him is done with but one purpose in view, that of moulding him into a part where, in the opinion of the state, he will be best fitted to assure the future of the country.

A group of selections by the Pearl Street School Orchestra under the direction of Anna Von Endt, which included "Traffic Club" "Cupids Darts," "Army Reserve," and "Junior League," and a vocal solo by Mrs. V. C. Smith accompanied on the piano by Miss Elizabeth Kenan provided a very pleasing variety to the program.

The club also voted to take part in the friendship bag movement, similar to the Japanese friendship doll movement which resulted in a great number of dolls being sent by the children of the United States to the children of Japan. It provides for sending school bags to the children of Mexico by the children of this country.

"Two Stolen Idols"

A Story of Love and Adventure

BY FRANK L. PACKARD

(Copyright, 1927, Geo. H. Doran Co., by Arrangement with King Features Syndicate, Inc.

CHAPTER 52

A HEAT haze shimmered on the river. There was no breeze—there had been all day. And here on the starboard bow of Java Dick's boat-scow was no shelter.

Kingsley licked his parched lips with the tip of his tongue. The sun was blazing upon him pitilessly. It had been since they had brought him water. But that was only discomfort—it was the torture that was unendurable.

There, ahead, land was visible. Kingsley stared at it—as he had stared it off and on all through the night—it must be 10 miles away—or fancy had played tricks with vision.

But whatever the distance, it was nearer and no farther away than it had been that morning. Chen-shu said that it was Luala—the village of Luala—where the creek and Chen-shu had made the anchorage with that hideous pleasantry that was uglier in its menace than the most outspoken threat. It would have been all over by now probably one way or the other, if it were not for the fact that they had lain all night becalmed.

Kingsley sank his head in his arms on the rail. It was Luala, then. In spite of the sluggish and unsatisfying qualities of this old hulk of a schooner that Java Dick had procured from Heaven knows where, they had been due at Luala this morning.

It was four days now, and tonight would be the fifth night since he had been trapped at Java Dick's. An hour after they had left him in that room there, they had returned and thrown him into a car. They had traveled miles, but long before daylight he had been taken aboard this schooner, and the schooner had put out to sea. Since then he had not moved six feet from where he now stood, for one end of a piece of hawser was fastened to an eye-bolt in a rail stanchion, and the other end was made fast to lashings around his middle. In daylight, when eyes were on him constantly, and it would have availed him nothing even had he been able to work the lashings loose, his hands were left free; at night-fall they were always securely bound.

Four days and four nights! No hell in the hereafter could be comparable with them. At times it seemed that his reason had literally cracked beneath the strain, for he had caught himself chattering aloud insanely more than once. He was not sure that even at this moment he was fully sane—that around him was actuality. How could it be actuality. The fiendishness of it all could not be devised or perpetrated by human beings—not even by dope-crazed Chinamen, or a drunk-mad Java Dick.

For four days and four nights at irregular, but never infrequent intervals, Mindar Singh's cries and shrieks had rung throughout the vessel. The man was pegged out on the deck near the main-mast. He was not in the road—they trod upon him. And those who would might strike him as they passed—and none failed to strike. And at regular intervals they triced him up and flogged him until the deck beneath his feet was red with blood.

The man was a ghastly and pitiable looking object. Instinctively, though his head was buried in his arms, Bob Kingsley closed his eyes as though to shut out from him some abhorrent sight. That morning they had dragged the poor wretch along the deck and had flung him at his, Bob Kingsley's feet.

"Heaven-Born," Shen-shu had purred, "the afflicted Mindar Singh, fearing that his strength fails him, but desiring only that ere he may cast his eyes upon the treasure of Hsi Yan before he dies, begs the Heaven-Born to give his unimpeachable assurance that the treasure is indeed in that place of which the Heaven-Born had spoken; for then will the heart of Mindar Singh be gladdened, since Luala being but a few miles distant there should then yet be time for him to see the treasure for which he has so willingly sacrificed his life."

Two-edged words! A barbed, inhuman taunt thrust at Mindar Singh; a threat in no wise veiled as to what would befall him. Bob Kinsley, if up that creek there was no burnt tree, no crumbled hillside, and no treasure of Hsi Yan.

He had not answered Chen-shu; and then for a time they had left Mindar Singh lying there at his feet—as an object lesson! He quite understood that!

There were no words to describe the man's condition. He did not want to describe it, or visualize it again, or let his mind dwell upon it. It turned his soul sick. Mindar Singh was scarcely any more a man—that which had lain at his feet was merely mangled human flesh that somehow breathed and somehow had the power of speech. He remembered the other's words, the outstretched pleading arms.

"Evil have I done unto you, Sahib," Mindar Singh had whispered; "but good let the Sahib do unto me in return. Reach out your hands, Sahib, and close them around my throat, and in mercy kill me, for I can no longer endure the torture that I suffer."

He had soothed the man as best he could; and had given the other his pannikin of water which was then half full—it was all he had to give; and after a little while, in halting, conscience-stricken phrases, Mindar Singh had confessed to having lied on the Alita in his account of what had taken place on the night of Hsi Yan's visit to Kalawa.

Up to that point where Mindar Singh had dragged Hsi Yan's body into the secret passage, his story was true; but he had not replaced Hsi Yan's body on the couch until he had made sure the junk had sailed away; and thereafter he had remained hidden in the secret passage. Everything he had done in connection with Hsi Yan's body had been for the purpose of building up an alibi for himself, for he had expected his master to return, and he had intended to creep out and strike Tom Kingsley down before his, Mindar Singh's identity could be known, and then steal the idols for himself. And, if it were necessary to do so in order to prevent recognition, Mindar Singh had admitted that he would have struck to kill. Hsi Yan's body was there to point to the authorship of the crime, and his own disappearance would be accounted for by the presumption that he had been carried off on the junk, or had met with foul play at the hands of the junk's crew. But Tom Kingsley had not returned, and for three days Mindar Singh had lain hidden in the passage, stealing out at night for food and water; then, believing that Tom Kingsley must have been caught and carried off in the junk, Mindar Singh had made his way surreptitiously to Singapore. There, he had eventually got on the track of the junk's crew; and there he had learned of the finding of Tom Kingsley's body in the open boat at sea.

Bob Kingsley nodded suddenly to himself. He had asked Mindar Singh about that. Mindar Singh's theory was simple enough, and, in the light of the native servants' statement, as cited by Crowley in his letter, was undoubtedly the true one. Tom Kingsley had found the house surrounded, and the natives scattered when he had escaped through the secret passage, and since he was wounded and could not walk any distance, the only way to get assistance was to go by boat to the town. This he had set out to do, but his wound had grown worse, he had lost consciousness, and, instead of reaching the town, the boat had been carried out to sea.

Again Bob Kingsley nodded. Undoubtedly that was what had happened, though in the very nature of things it must always remain but a conjecture.

As for the rest of Mindar Singh's story, the killing of Hsun Chi and the theft of the first idol needed no repetition, for that confession had already been wrung from him by Java Dick and Chen-shu. After that, with one of the idols then in his possession, and learning that he, Bob Kingsley, had had the other at Java Dick's, Mindar Singh had come off to the Alita, where he had presented himself in the role of the faithful servant. There was little else that he, Bob Kingsley, had not already known, except that Mindar Singh had taken into his confidence some men of his own race who owned a small vessel and were prepared to start at once for the treasure. The reason for Mindar Singh's ingenuous explanation of the key to the cipher as much as he, Bob Kingsley, had already surmised. Mindar Singh had hoped thereby to establish such unquestioning trust in himself that the translation of the cipher would at once have been made in his presence, and so secure him against the risk, both of failure and of danger to himself, that was necessarily involved in the only alternative he had—which was the actual theft of the idols. He had been obliged, however, to resort to the alternative of theft, and had stolen the idols successfully; but only to fall with them in his possession into the hands of Chen-shu—and into his present miserable and fatal plight.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

IT was colder and cloudier yesterday when me and Jubilee got up and I let him down out of the window by the rope in his teeth. A fella don't feel good on a morning like that. But when the sky is clear so that he knows there is going to be sunshine, and it is warm, he feels like he could whistle a tune, even on Sunday.

When I had brung in the milk and strained it my family wasn't up yet because it was Sunday morning, so I thought I would take a sneak downstairs and see what my mother had left from the winter. I found a lot of cans of strawberries, and some quinces and a jar of picallilli and a crock of apple butter. All at once the cellar door came shut with a bang and I could hear the table being moved over it. I sat down on the bottom step to think what I had better do. Then I heard my mother calling me out of the back door and I knew the bunch was waiting for me, so I opened the little cellar window which was covered up with manure and dirt that my father banks the house up with in the winter, and I had to dig out with my hands and it wasn't so very dry.

When I had got a hole big enough to crawl through I got down off the crock and got a can of strawberries and poked out of the window. Then I crawled out of the window and took the strawberries to the barn and put it in the feed box. I told the bunch I would be out to go to Sunday school as soon as my aunt had washed me, and then I wrenched off my hands and went in the house. My mother wanted to know where I had been, and I told her everywhere, and my aunt said I smelt like it, and moved her chair farther away. After breakfast my aunt got to work and she told my mother that she didn't believe even consecrated lie would get me clean, so when she got done she put some perfume on my knit and on my clothes and my father said I smelt like a night blooming cirrus.

When I got out and yoo-hooed for the bunch to come out of the barn their faces and hands were all smeared with strawberries, so I didn't have any more strawberries than a rabbit. That's the kind of a bunch they are.

Today was Monday, and Nibs is still laying for the Lost Bag of Tripe. I hope I run around when he catches him. The Lost Bag of Tripe said he had to stay after school tonight, so we hiked over and surrounded his house so as to catch him when he came home, but the crook hadn't had to stay, and he got home ahead of us. After we had his house surrounded till most dark he came outside and gave us the laugh. The dirty crook.

Love's Embers

A Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

MAIDE FINDS A SECRET

"YOU see," Lillian said, explaining her objection to my conversation as to Eleanor Lincoln's real identity, "While I would stake my credit rickle that we're right, we haven't any real proof that our young neighbor of The Larches is as really well, for purposes of conversation, let us say Miss X. I grant you that the resemblance between Miss Lincoln and the photo of Miss X is startling, yet there are tell-tale differences. The dog in the picture is what Mrs. Tiver would call the 'spitted' image of Bobo, but Little brothers are hard to distinguish from each other. Of course, the discovery of this secret miniature which the girl has guarded so carefully is almost positive proof, for who else but Miss X—the other girls are much older, you know—would possess this costly and highly prized bauble. And yet, on the other hand, there is Katie's theory, which, absurd as it may appear, yet has at least the skeleton of an underpinning in the terror which Eleanor Lincoln betrays at the owl hoots that we decided came from those two Transylvanian vagabonds in the shack."

"I can't believe the girl is a thief," I said, obstinately.

"Neither can I," Lillian acquiesced promptly, "and yet we can't overlook any possible hets, nor can we afford any premature announcement of this most astonishing name. So 'an you love me, dear,' let it be 'Miss X' until this whole thing is cleared up. I don't mind telling you that I pray it will be soon. If this girl really is 'Miss X,' and that ruffian in the shack knows and which no doubt he does, it would be a brave life insurance agent who would write a policy on her."

The gravity in her eyes impressed me even more than her emphatic words.

"Of course," I said, "I shall do what ever you wish in the matter."

She flashed a quick approving smile at me.

"'Atta girl!" she commended. "The trouble is there's so darned little to do. We can't very well go to the lady and say: 'Look here, Mademoiselle, you're 'Miss X' and we're going to re-store you to your family. Suppose she refused to be restored?"

"But you think she's in grave danger?"

"Than which there is no graver," Lillian retorted. "However, there's nothing we can do about it until the lady decides to confide in someone, or something else develops. Let's have a good look at this trinket. I wish you'd exercise that memory of yours over it. Some time we might need to recollect every detail of it. File away in your mental strong box, for instance, the number of jewels of each kind and then be able to draw a picture of the thing if you had to."

"Why wouldn't it be a good thing to draw a picture of it now while it's before us?" I suggested.

It would, if you have time," she answered. "You want to get this back before the girl wakens, you know, and you can't always depend upon the length of time an opiate will affect a certain person. Hello! Look at this! Do you see anything queer about it?"

She had turned the miniature case over and was inspecting the back of the oval opposite to that on which the picture rested. I scanned it closely and then, laying it down, I rose and walking to my desk brought back a powerful magnifying glass. I was furious with myself that I could not control the trembling of my hands as I held the glass over the exquisitely jeweled surface of the case. Then, without a word, I handed the glass to Lillian, and in turn, she scanned the case through it.

"I thought so," she said as she laid it down. "It's very cunningly done, but I'm used to looking out for those things. But you see, don't you, the distinct line of cleavage outlining a circular disk in the middle of this thing?"

I nodded, finding my throat suddenly dry from excitement.

"That means there's a secret compartment. Now if we only can find the spring which throws it open!"

Doctor Found Women and Children Sick More Often than Men

Dr. B. Caldwell M.D. AT AGE 82

As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois, the whole human body, not any small part of it, was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half his "calls" were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—cold, fevers, headaches, biliousness—and all of them required first a thorough evacuation. They were constipated.

In the course of Dr. Caldwell's 47 years' practice he was graduated from Rush Medical College back in 1875), he found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs with pepsin. In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of a medicine to be known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and in that year his prescription was first placed on the market.

The preparation immediately had as great a success in the drug stores as it previously had in Dr. Caldwell's private practice. Now, the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it. Millions of bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are being used a year.

Its great success is based on merit, on repeated buying, on one satisfied user telling another. There are thousands of homes in this country that are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and we have gotten many hundreds of letters from grateful people telling us that it helped them when everything else failed.

While women, children and elderly people are especially benefited by Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, it is promptly effective on the most robust constitution and in the most obstinate cases. It is mild and gentle in its action and does not cause griping and strain. Containing neither opiates nor narcotics, it is safe for the tiniest baby. Children like it and take it willingly.

Every drug store sells Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Keep a bottle in your home,—where many live someone is sure to need it quickly.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.—Adv.

Knopp And Tremaine Will Meet On Boxing Card Tonight

TOLEDO FIGHTERS TO CLASH WITH MARION MAULERS IN PRELIMS

Battle Royal Will Open Show at 8:15 O'Clock; Anticipate Good Fights

BY KARL R. McELROY
Sports Editor

The science of developing cauliflower ears in all its glory will be demonstrated tonight at the Marion Eagles' hall when the 20-round program of fistcuffs gets under way.

A better card than given fans in the first show of the season has been promised by promotors of the manly art in Marion. The show will get under way at 8:15 o'clock.

In the main go attraction, Harold Knopp of Toledo and Clyde Tremaine of Columbus will trade blows for a period of eight rounds. Although not knockout experts these two boys are expected to give plenty action before the final stanza of their share of the program become past history.

Both main go men are well known to Marion fans. Tremaine has displayed his wares here a number of times meeting with considerable approval. Knepp has been making a good reputation for himself around Toledo with several notable victories under his belt. They will fight at 128 pounds.

Two Marion Boys

In the semi-final and second preliminary bouts two Marion maulers will be seen in action. Ray Snyder, local favorite at the last Eagles show, will meet Sailor Baldwin of Toledo in a six round affair. Baldwin has established a good record with only one draw and no defeats in 12 starts. Snyder is fighting his sixth battle and has shown constant improvement.

Harold Williams, absent from the local ring a number years while out Indiana way, will appear in a preliminary engagement slated to cover six rounds. He is slated as one tough baby but will need all of it to defeat Louise Haines of Toledo. Williams may be tough but the word cannot describe Haines, believe it or not. The Marion lad has been in several fights in Indiana and has developed into a real mixer.

The preliminary will be a battle royal affair with five colored boys from Toledo taking part. According to advance information these fighters furnish lots of fun.

Training Camp Briefs

BEAT ATHLETICS

Fort Myers, Fla., March 19—Hitting on all nine cylinders, the New York Giants invaded the camp of the Philadelphia Athletics here today for the third game of their spring series. The Giants opened the count by swamping the A's at St. Augustine, Fla., yesterday by a score of 6 to 1.

STILL UNSETTLED

Winter Haven, Fla., March 19—The Brooklyn Robins faced the Phillies here today with their lineup still unsettled. The slugging Babe Herman may replace Statz, a weak hitter, in center field. Howard Freigau, of Dayton, Ohio, and Jake Flowers, are making a strong bid for berths in the infield.

GO SPEED 'EM UP

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 19—E. S. Barnard, president of the American League, who is stopping at the camp of the New York Yankees here, intends to see to it that teams in the junior circuit play fast ball this year.

A ball will be called on pitchers who take more than 20 seconds between pitches, and a strike will be called on batters who step out of the box for no good reason.

CUBS LOSE

Los Angeles, March 19—The Cubs smarted today under their second exhibition defeat, having lost before 7,000 Sunday fans to the Hollywood club of the Coast League, 5 to 4.

SOX TAKE COUNT

Fort Worth, Tex., March 19—Chicago's White Sox were primed today for the series final against Jakie Artz's Fort Worth Cats. The Sox are determined to redeem themselves for the clawing the Cats gave them before a large Sabbath crowd yesterday. The score was 2 to 1.

TO WORK HARD

New Orleans, March 19—Smarting under their 7-9 defeat at the hands of New Orleans, Sunday, the Cleveland Americans today were to engage in a stiff workout.

DAYTON CAGERS WIN TITLE FROM CANTON

Hillsboro - Marshall Defeats Manchester in Class B Division of State Meet

Columbus, March 19 — Dayton Stivers today holds the Ohio High School basketball championship after chalking up at 25 to 20 victory over Canton McKinley in the finals of the state Class A tournament here Saturday night.

In the Class B tourney, Hillsboro-Marshall won the title by defeating Manchester in the final contest, 20 to 17.

The Dayton champions may not be permitted to represent Ohio in the forthcoming champions tournament at Chicago, since the faculty of the school as a rule does not permit the absence of any particular group of students during the school year, it was learned today. A decision in the matter is to be reached later.

THINGS ARE NOT SO BRIGHT IN MANY BIG LEAGUE BALL CLUBS

Speaker and Cobb May Flop; Giants' "Short" and O'Farrell Is Hurt

By DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, March 19—Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker will let in more runs than they drive in this season, American League ball players claim.

Waivers were asked by the Cardinals on Tommy Thevenow, one of the brightest stars of the 1926 world series, about a month ago and then were hastily withdrawn.

The New York Giants are "short" on their spring development so far and don't look better than a fourth place club without Hornsby.

Bob O'Farrell, catcher-manager of the 1927 Cards, went south with a finger on his throwing hand stiffened from an old injury and nobody knows whether or not it has healed. Hafey, star outfielder of the same club, may never again have normal vision, according to observers with the club.

These were the outstanding impressions the writer brought with him today from a swing around the southern training sites on and contiguous to the Florida peninsula. The Thevenow incident has pretty well been "shushed" by Cardinal officials but the story seemed to be predictated purely on fact. At least one newspaperman in the camp of the Phillies claims to have seen the waiver request while a manager of a rival club freely admitted to the writer that the request to waive had been forwarded to him. He declared with all hustle and the request, probably a so called "feeler" for a trade, was withdrawn in much the same spirit.

Recovery Not Expected

It may be judged therefrom that a month ago the Cardinals didn't expect Thevenow to fully recover from his broken leg of 1927. How they may feel about it is not unknown, the withdrawn waiver request being the last heard of the incident by the rest of the league.

As for Cobb and Speaker, a well known American Leaguer summed up the current version of their appearance in the Athletic outfield by informing the writer that no longer was either man a major leaguer expect in hitting. When asked why Connie Mack could be so readily fooled while the rest of the league was so smart, his reply was:

"Connie isn't being fooled any more than anybody else. We all are in this business for the money and naturally Connie wants his. He is figuring Cobb and Speaker for their box office value, not as probable help in his attempt to win the American League pennant."

Caught Game

O'Farrell and Hafey, it seems, were taken south with every precaution against adverse reports on their state of health getting abroad. Perhaps this very attempt has defeated its own purpose by creating an air of suspicion. Anyhow, I note that O'Farrell caught a ball game the other day.

There can be no justifiable attempt, however, to conceal the fact that Hornsby's departure has left the Giants in that nebulous state best described under that most damning example of faint praise, "just a ball club." The Giants, in addition, haven't been hitting, this being particularly true of Hogan and Welsh, the two young men who were sent to New York in the Hornsby transaction.

Story of Tom Heeney is Fit For Pen of Fictionist

BY FRANK G. MENKE

SOMEBODY should page Horatio Alger.

For a story is to be written that is the pen of so romantic a fictionist properly can write.

It's the story of Tom Heeney.

Only a few years ago he was an expert blacksmith, toiling at an anvil by day down in New Zealand and fighting around in the evenings in a promiscuous.

As time went on, Tom, round shouldered and chinless, with a heavy neck and a chin of steel, decided to go to sea. He beat up some of his gym comrades; he performed against men in other gyms. Then he decided as a bloke hunting a title and soon—oh, quit soon—Tommy was the heavyweight champ.

Being heavyweight champion in New Zealand carries almost as much importance—and the same remuneration—as vice admiral of the Swiss navy. So our hero decided he'd hie himself off to dear old London and see what he could do for himself there. Inasmuch as he wasn't able to do much in the Antipodes.

Tomasco sojourned for a while in the British Isles, fought a few fights; picked up a few shillings and then decided that business at home was as it was, wasn't much worse—and that he'd rather be home.

* * *

So he packed his bags and was just about to buy a ticket back to New Zealand, via the Suez Canal when he got a letter from Charlie Harvey of New York, the world famous importer of British pugilism, horizontal or vertical on the hoof, embalmed—oh how'll you have it?

"See America first," advised Charlie.

"Why not?" mused Tom.

So he said to the ticket agent: "Route me back by way of New York and San Francisco."

Heeney arrived in Gotham late in 1926 without a thought in mind of getting himself a brawl—and some cash. He merely came to take a squint at the high buildings and to look at Charlie Harvey's world famous mustache. But hardly had they exchanged greetings when Harvey said:

"These heavies around here are a lotta bums."

"I heard different," argued Tom.

"You heard wrong," sayeth Charlie.

"And so it's all press agent stuff?" queried Tom.

"Sure, you can lick 'em," quoth Charlie.

"How do you know?" countered Tom Heeney.

"Well," explained Charlie Harvey, "I look at it this way. No matter how bad you are its a cinch you can't be as bad as they are."

"But I didn't come to fight: I'm just here for a few days to see the town—then I'm shoving off for home," said Heeney.

"You'll need a little money for chewing gum and beer on that trip, won't you?" spoke up Harvey.

"Now that you mention—"

"Therefore," cut in Harvey, "I'll show you the way to go home—a rich man. There's a big black fellow around here named Charlie Anderson. He was Jack Dempsey's sparring partner in Atlantic City. A lot of the lads around here are afraid of him. But you aren't, are you, Tom?"

"If you say so, well, I'm not," answered Tom.

"You fight and I'll manage," said Charlie, "We'll knock out the palooka."

* * *

TAKING the match on 5 or 10 minute notice, Heeney knocked out Anderson in 8 rounds.

The next day when Tom counted up his money from the fight and compared it with those he received in New Zealand, he exclaimed:—

"At last—I have met Santa Claus."

But Harvey corrected him:—"That's hardly pin money as compared with what I can get you around here—if you'll stick. I can get you a truckload of money if you'll fight Paulino, the great Uzcudun."

"I'll fight him for half a truckload," responded Heeney.

Heeney went 10 rounds with the lumber slicer—and lost the decision. But all of the best people thought Tom was "jobbed" in that one; they agreed Tom had won the fight "by a mile." So Tom was still welcome on those shores.

Heeney then whipped Jack De Marc, won on a foul from Bud Gorman battled to a draw with Paulino, knocked out Jim Maloney and beat Johnny Risko, mixed it to a draw with Jack Sharkey and not so long afterward dragged in nearly $42,000 for beating Jack Delaney in 15 rouns.

Thus, and therefore, in a trifle more than a year in the U. S. A., Heeney who merely came here on a stop over ticket, has gathered in more than $200,000. He should pick up another $100,000 by fighting the winner of the Sharkey-Risko affair—and that means $300,000, no matter what else happens.

If he wins the final fit in the elimination thing he will get at least $150,000 for swapping smacks with Gene Tunney. If he beats Tunney—but why go that far? Isn't it enough of a story, as it is? Isn't it a tale which, in the matter of plot, rivals anything that Alger ever conceived in his fanciful brain?

CHICAGO WHITE SOX HAVE ONLY OUTSIDE CHANCE THIS SEASON

Chalmer Cissell Outstanding Addition to Club; Few Other Changes

Editor's Note: This is the twelfth of a series of articles by International News Service, dealing with developments in various major league training camps. Other articles of the series will follow.

Shreveport, La., March 19—Pretty much the same ball club, except for the addition of Chalmer Cissell, the Portland, Ore., $125,000 shortstop, the Chicago White Sox will start the American League race with only an outside chance of crashing into the first division. The Sox were well up there for a while in 1927 but infield fumbles more than counterbalanced good pitching and a air punch and the Sox fumbled.

Cissell, was unknown outside St. Louis three years ago but his season with Portland was so sensational that half of the major league clubs were bidding for him.

They have passed Peckinpaugh and Aaron Ward on to Cleveland and have sent big Carl Sheely back to the minors. Sheeley still is regarded as a pretty good first baseman but big Clancy has youth in his favor.

May Take Position

George Redfern, up from Asheville and Fort Worth, has been going great guns in the infield and may take the other position away from Bill Hunnefield, last year's handy man. The Club hasn't an infielder in camp over 28 and the outfield average is closer to 21.

Among those who serve to keep this average low is Henry Schrump, from Niles, Mich., John Mann, from Terre Haute and Forth Worth, and Miller Beasley, from Bonham, Tex.

Ted Lyons, Vinton, La., Alvin Crowder, Thomas, Baltimore; Ted Blankenship, Aloha, Okla., and George Connally, McGregor, Tex., again will try to get the Sox away running. Urban Faber, the Cascade, Iowa, redhead, is back for one more season.

Charley Barnebe, Los Angeles left hander, also is back for another work. There are 18 pitchers in camp.

The catching corps, will be made up of last year's regulars, Harry McCurdy, Houston, Tex., and Clyde Crouse, Marcie, Ind., with Moe Berg, the returned shortstop, ready for any and all emergencies. Berg has looked very good down here. Schalk himself might catch a few games. It doesn't seem likely that he will retain Charley Kellar, from Corpus Christi, Tex., or Floyd Doherty, Chicago semi pro.

Big Falk, Austin, Tex., Alex Metzler, Fresno, Cal., the unfortunate Johnny Mostil, Whiting, Ind., and Bill Barrett, Cambridge, Mass., were the regular outfielders last year and are back to repeat. The only uncertainty is Mostil.

MAKES RECORD

New York, March 19—Willie Hoppe today holds the world's competitive high run record for three-cushion billiards. Playing against Harry Wahlfield in his final match in the American Three-Cushion Billiard League Tournament, Hoppe won the match with an unfinished run of 20.

Recalls Early Days

He recalled the days when parents required their sons and daughters to attend church services and also instilled the ideals in the youthful minds by setting the proper examples.

Sincerity and absolute faith in religion and the efficacy of prayer were among the predominant characteristics of the fathers and mothers at that time, Mr. Verburg said.

"I wonder if young people of today are not being granted too many privileges in doing as they please and also wonder what the results are likely to be in regard to the country's future?" he stated.

Reception Planned

On Monday night, March 26, a farewell reception is to be held at the church in honor of both Mr. and Mrs. Verburg, who have been actively identified with First Presbyterian affairs during their residence here. The reception, planned by the Sunday School classes in which they are enrolled, is to start at 7:30 o'clock and will include a program of music and addresses.

It had been planned to take a group photograph of the Men's class yesterday but this was prevented by unfavorable weather conditions. The picture will be taken next Sunday, it was announced. The lesson next Sunday is to be taught by James H. Lemon, local attorney.

Attendance Drive

J. B. Bray, president of the class, announced that an effort will be made to register an average attendance of 100 or more for March. This, he stated, would establish a record mark never attained before by any men's class in the city.

A membership contest now in progress will close on Easter Sunday. Ten teams entered in the contest are now led by the one captained by R. G. Williamson.

READY FOR HOP-OFF

Toledo Leadership Plane Averages 100 Miles Per Hour

Washington, March 19—The New York American plane, Toledo Leadership, which arrived here from New York Saturday night, today was awaiting favorable weather for its hop to Pittsburgh. On the first leg of 9,000-mile coast-to-coast flight, the huge plane averaged better than 100 miles per hour.

The high-powered radio sending and receiving telephone and telegraph set, installed by the Radio Corporation of America worked perfectly. The R. C. A. engineer who is operating the radio apparatus, declared that in the near future such combined receiving and transmitting sets will be standard equipment on most of the larger commercial planes.

MULLEN MAKES BID FOR TUNNEY BATTLE

Chicago Promoter Planning Elimination Fight; Gene Is Offered $400,000 for Bout

Chicago, March 19—Gene Tunney has been offered $400,000 with a privilege of 50 per cent of the net receipts for a defense of his heavyweight championship in Chicago this summer, Promoter James C. Mullen announced today.

Mullen made the offer, he said, after being assured by friends in the east that owing to the collapse of Tex Rickard's heavyweight elimination carnival, the New York promoter would be unable to fill the terms of his contract with Tunney which calls for a fight this June or July.

The Chicago promoter announced plans of his own for a heavyweight elimination contest here. The first bout will be staged at the Coliseum Friday night, bringing together Otto Von Porat, the Norwegian, and Roberto Roberti, the Italian.

GALION TOSSERS LOSE ON STEAM SHOVEL COURTS

LEGION TO CONTINUE DRIVE FOR MEMBERS

Final Scores in "War" Announced in Detail by Carl F Ebert

Although the "war" waged by three divisions of Bird-McGinnis Post, No. 102, of the American Legion, came to a formal close when peace was declared at a big Legion rally held the night of March 13, the drive for new members will continue, according to "General Order No. 6," issued today by Carl F. Ebert, who served as chief of staff in the membership campaign.

"Peace has been declared, but there can be no peace for any ex-service man not in the Legion," the order reads.

In his official communication, Ebert announces the final score in detail, showing that the navy was victorious in the membership drive. He also announces "citations" for those making exceptional showings in the campaign. The citations are as follows:

"For conspicuous bravery in action with the enemy in that they did single-handed take more than 10 prisoners each, the gold, miniature Legion lapel button is hereby conferred upon Legionaires William E. Marks and Clarence M. Bowe.

Take Five Members

For taking five or more prisoners—meaning signing of new members—the Legion auto radiator insignia goes to W. E. Hane, H. F. Baldauf, T. E. Kinnear, L. Don Jones, Walter Burger, R. E. Grubaugh, J. W. Llewellyn, Charles H. Howard, Walter Lee Sherfey.

The official count for the three warring forces was as follows:

Navy, 51 members; Army, 42; Marines, 36.

The general order also announces the following schedule of events arranged by the Legion Post:

Private showing of "Behind the Front," official war pictures, for Legionaires and their families and the auxiliary, at the Legion Dugout on Tuesday, March 27.

"Entertainment de luxe," by the losing forces in the membership campaign after the regular meeting Tuesday, April 10.

Stag entertainment and smoker as a farewell to the Harding tomb guard at the Dugout on Tuesday, April 24. The complete moving picture story of the guard detachment and related events will be shown for the first time, it is announced.

MINIATURE MOVIES SHOW LIFE IN NAVY

Moving Picture of Course of Training Is Placed on Display Here

A miniature moving picture showing activities in one of the United States Naval Training Stations was placed in operation at noon today in the west window of Lehrer Electric Supply Co., by E. Cromwell, by Chief Turret Capt. John B. Nash, in charge of the local Navy Recruiting Station located in the American Legion Building.

The picture is a record from the recruiting station to the training station and through the recruiting training three months' course.

It gives a very clear view of what young men who enlist in the Navy have to go through, and they learn the duties of seamanship, how to live on board ship, how to keep clean and the care of themselves at all times, what the Navy does for their contentment and physical welfare. It shows many things that could not be seen except by a visit to a naval training station. The one shown is Newport, R. I. Men from here are sent to Great Lakes, Ill.

The Navy maintains four of these stations for the training of men for the ships of the fleet and all men enlisting are required to take the two months course.

The recruiting officer here is getting men ready for the next quota and expects to have a number of Marion boys, as there are already several on the list ready to go.

MARION REPRESENTED AT LEGION MEETING

Reports at Session in London Show Posts Are Increasing Members, Activities

Reports and addresses showing that the American Legion in this section of Ohio is increasing its membership and field of activities featured a central district conference held in London, yesterday, with representatives of practically all Posts in the district present.

Bird-McGinnis Post, No. 162, of this city was represented by Carl Ebert, T. E. Kinnear D. J. McDonald and L. Don Jones.

The meeting, open to the public, was attended by more than 500 Legion members and guests. The London High School auditorium, where the program took place, was filled to overflowing.

In addition to being represented by the four members of Bird-McGinnis Post, Marion County contributed to the program indirectly through two other men who had prominent parts.

Band Is Heard

T. E. Andrews, former Marion mayor who is superintendent of the Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' Home at Xenia, brought the cadet band from the institution to present a concert. The band, consisting of 60 musicians, all young people from the home, gave a program under the leadership of H. E. Seal, the institution's musical director.

Robert W. Smith of Cincinnati, former resident of Prospect, gave the principal address of the meeting. He was present as chairman of the state Legion organization's Americanism committee and his address related to the committee's work. He spoke particularly in reference to the national junior baseball tournament being sponsored by the committee. Marion County, it has been announced, will have several teams entered in the tournament, which will decide the national championship of baseball teams made up of boys from 12 to 17 years of age. L. Don Jones of this city is a member of the state committee in charge of arrangements.

Other Features

Other features of the program yesterday were addresses by Mayor Cornwell of London, Louis Laeger of Chillicothe, central district Legion chairman, who presided, J. J. Saslavsky, state Legion adjutant, Al Duprey, state service officer, Milton D. Campbell of Cincinnati, chairman of the child welfare committee, George E. Denney of Middletown, state Legion commander, representatives of the G. A. R. and Spanish War Veterans of London, and a patriotic demonstration by 60 London school children.

Saslavsky announced that the Ohio Legion was defeated by California in a membership contest which came to a close Thursday night. At the wind-up, California led by about 2,300.

Duprey, who is in charge of work in behalf of disabled World War veterans in this section of Ohio, announced that there is probability of compensation being granted to ex-service men listed as less than 10 per cent disabled. None in this classification have received compensation up to this time but the government is now preparing to take action in connection of such cases.

The meeting took place yesterday afternoon following dinner served by women of the Legion Auxiliary of London at 12:30 o'clock.

Date and place for the next district gathering, to be held in about three months, have not been announced.

New York, March 19—Irregularity marked the course of the stock market today. While new advances were scored in a number of the railroad and specialty stocks, profit taking and speculative selling checked the rise in the speculative leaders like Radio and General Motors. There was apparently no decline in speculative interest, and transactions rolled along at a 4,000,000 share rate in the first three hours.

Bankers and business leaders in the financial district were generally optimistic over the outlook for the second quarter most of the records of the first quarter, with the exception of the steel and motor industries, will suffer by comparison with the same period last year, and the shrinkage of freight car loadings is not a favorable commentary on the movement of goods in domestic trade.

Stock exchange commission houses urged conservatism in their market "letters" and private wires to clients and outside points, because of the rapid rise in stocks of companies that have yet to show wreal earning ability. A few large blocks of Radio sold 5 to 8 points below the previous close, but most of the active steel and motor shares withstood heavy profit taking without much of a shrinkage.

Railroad stocks were unable to continue the week-end spurt which sent price up 3 to 9 points in representative issues. After a period of moderate activity, the rails retired again to the inactive list.

Submarine S-4 Successfully Placed in Boston Drydock

PLAN TO ENTER VESSEL TODAY

Removal of Eight Bodies in Submersible Likely To Take Place Tonight

Charlestown Navy Yard, Boston, March 19—Swinging slowly with the tide in the bright sunlight and with her flag at half staff flying from her battered conning tower, the submarine S-4 was successfully jockeyed into Dry dock No. 2 today.

The big gates swung behind the craft and the work of pumping the water from the dock was started, the shattered submersible resting on an even keel on blocks. Only her conning tower showed above the drydock.

Next in order was the exploration of the interior of the sunken undersea boat for any farewell letters or reports from Lieut. Lorraine Newell Ellis and his five brave men who lodged the sled tapped messages to the outside world 102 feet below the Provincetown Republican.

Removal of the eight bodies locked in the submersible will come tonight, 32 bodies having been recovered by divers as the ship lay on the ocean bottom off the Cape Cod shore.

Flowers Are Sent

A beautiful basket of flowers was here sent by the Pittsburgh Deep Sea Diving Telephone Co. to be thrown on the waters off the yard by Capt. Ernest J. King, in charge of salvage, in memory of the 16 gallant men who lost their lives in the disaster.

A special board of inquiry was on hand to begin work as soon as the dry dock is cleared of water. The board included: Capt. J. D. Wilson, President Comdr. Earl C. Lowight of the Construction corps and Lieut. Arthur G. Smith, recorder. Medical examiner George Burgess Magruta was with the board.

Moving the 230-foot craft and her six pontoons, a total dead weight of 1,000 tons into the dry dock was a three-hour task.

As the bow of the submersible touched the first cull Capt. Ernest King, in charge of salvage operations, turned over the work to a small army of navy yard workers under command of Capt. Claston N. Summers.

Bayliss Is Spectator

A big navy yard crane placed a steel pole across the conning tower with the ends of the pole resting on either side of the dry dock. This was to serve an even entrance for the submarine.

When the S-4 was finally in the dock a group of divers led by Fred Michaels, who nearly lost his life in the diving operations of Providence, were below in the drydock and assisted the blocks.

An interested spectator of the docking was Comdr. John F. Bayliss of the coastguard who was in command of the coastguard cutter Paulding when the S-4 was rammed to the bottom on December 17, 1927.

To Enter Vessel Today

Meanwhile the naval board of investigation met aboard the U. S. S. Southerly and made plans for entering the submersible late this afternoon.

Medical men, who will first explore the ship, were given gas masks.

Rear Admiral Philip Andrews, commanding the first naval district, today assigned a blue jacket watch to march with the ambulances tonight from the drydock to Chelsea Naval Hospital.

FIVE COMPANIES BID ON TRAFFIC LIGHTS

Officials To Confer This Afternoon To Classify Offers of Concerns

Bids from five manufacturers of traffic lights were opened by the Board of Control in the office of Mayor Earl M. Hazen, Saturday afternoon. Because of the large amount of detail to be checked over before a contract can be awarded, however, it is probable that several days will elapse before a contract is awarded. Prices ranged from $3,100 to $3,800 for the six lights. Classification of bids will be completed at a conference this afternoon.

The companies submitting bids were the General Electric Co., of Schenectady, N. Y.; The Electric Railway & Signal Co., of Cincinnati; The Crawford Foundry Co., of Crawford, Ind.; The Tokheim Tank & Pump Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind., and the Crouse Hinds Co., of Syracuse, N. Y.

Sample of the various types of lights are on display at Central Fire Station. Overhead types were displayed by the Crouse Hinds Co., and the Tokheim Tank & Pump Co., while the latter company also has on display the side arm type. The overhead type submitted by the New York company, is equipped with a devise that makes it possible to shut off completely the stop and go lights and convert the caution light into a flash light to guard traffic during a run of the fire department.

REVIVAL SERVICES

Thirteen Persons Respond to Altar Call at Central Christian

Thirteen persons were received at the altar at the revival services yesterday morning and last night at Central Christian Church. There have been 16 enrolled since the opening of the campaign a week ago yesterday.

Attendance at both services yesterday was unusually large. At night Rev. J. J. Tisdall, the Mansfield evangelist directing the campaign, preached on the subject, "The World's Greatest Detective." His sermon, in which he designated sin as the world's greatest detective, was based on the text, "Be sure your sins will find you out."

In the morning Rev. George E. Groves, pastor, preached on the subject, "Wise and Foolish." Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Tuckerman of Huntington, W. Va., who are in charge of the music, were heard in vocal numbers.

The revival will continue this week with services each night except Saturday, at 7:30 o'clock, and will close with three services next Sunday.

ARRESTED AGAIN

E. F. Sharpless Charged With Operating Sunday Movies

For the third consecutive Sunday, Edward F. Sharpless, manager of the Grand Theater, was arrested yesterday when he opened the theater for the showing of motion pictures. He was arrested at 2 o'clock in the afternoon shortly after opening his first show and again at 9:05 o'clock at night.

As on the two previous Sundays he was released for his appearance in court this morning and as on the two previous Sundays he waived examination and was bound over to the grand jury under $500 bond on each charge. His arrest Sunday brings the charges against Sharpless to seven. The charges will be heard by the grand jury at a special session on March 28.

INTEREST IN BUSES IS REVIVED IN CITY

Newark Company Notifies City Clerk Keller of Conference Set Tuesday

Interest in bus lines which are to take the place of city car when they are abandoned at the expiration of the company's franchise in October was revived Saturday when City Rapid Transit Co. of Newark notified City Clerk Keller that a representative of that company would be in the city Tuesday afternoon for the purpose of submitting a proposition to city officials.

L. E. Starr, R. E. Prettyman and T. J. Mead, members of the ordinance and franchise committee of City Council, City Solicitor George T. Geran and possibly other city officials will meet with the Newark man, City Clerk Keller said today.

An inspection of the Newark bus lines was made by city officials in January. They expressed themselves as well pleased with the manner in which the lines were operated there. A survey of the local situation was made by the Newark company last month.

The Maag Brothers Co. of this city and the Newark company are the only ones thus far that have signified their intentions of seeking a franchise to operate bus lines here.

LEAD LEAGUE

Good Hope Lutherans and Holy Trinity Teams On Top

Bucyrus, March 19—The Good Hope Lutheran, and the Holy Trinity basketball teams are now at the top of the senior basketball league with no games lost.

The Good Hope Lutherans played and defeated the United Brethern team Saturday night at the Y. M. C. A. by a score of 32 to 23.

Tonight the Christians are scheduled to meet the Presbyterians, and it is likely the Good Hopes will meet the Holy Trinity in the final game at the Y. M. C. A. Friday night.

MARION MAN'S FATHER STRICKEN AT CAMBRIDGE

James Hardesty, father of Fred Hardetsy, 406 Girard-av, died at his home in Cambridge Friday night according to word received here. Death was due to heart trouble following an illness of several months.

Mr. and Mrs. Hardesty left for Cambridge Saturday and will attend the funeral services today.

TO DISBAND CHAPTER

Bucyrus, March 19—The Royal Home Lodge, a social and benefit organization, and only Royal Home chapter existing so far as it is locally known, will permanently disband March 31, due to the lack of interest by members in attending the regular meeting and decrease in benefit membership.

Ohio Progress Cited by Writer in Survey Report

Walker S. Buel, Cleveland newspaper man who visited Marion recently while making a tour of Ohio for the purpose of "Feeling the political pulse" of the state, found that progress has been made here in recent years.

Comment on his observations while here appeared in a review of his trip appearing yesterday in the Plain Dealer. His reference to changes taking place here related to the eight years that have elapsed since the Harding presidential campaign, when Marion was for a time one of the center of national interest.

"A new theater is going up in Marion opposite Hotel Harding," Buel reports. "There are changes here in eight years. In the hotel lobby is a model of the President Harding memorial, and a big, life-like portrait of the man who looked more like a president than almost any other in our history gazes down in a kindly way from the wall.

"Here is the Marion Star to greet you and the name of Mt. Vernon as still gives an old campaign thrill.

"But the Harding home is a place of memories and the press headquarters in George Christian's back yard, the press bungalow,' where some of us spent the campaign summer and fall of 1920, is now a garage.

"From a high window I looked out upon one of the most peaceful sights in the world, the roofs of a little town at night and thought of a line from one of the beautiful old songs.

'Above thy deep and dreamless sleep
The silent stars go by.'"

Interesting comment is made regarding all of the towns and cities visited by Buel in his tour.

His trip was primarily for the purpose of getting an appraisal of public opinion in regard to the contest between Herbert Hoover and Frank B. Willis for the Ohio delegation to the Republican national convention.

Willis, he found, holds a commanding lead in Marion and vicinity.

BORER BILL NOT TO PASS, WHARTON SAYS

President of Ohio Farm Club Federation Gets Tip from Congressman

Kenton, March 19—"The corn borer appropriation bill will not be passed by the present legislature at Washington," it was declared here today by C. E. Wharton, president of the Federated Farm Clubs of Ohio, as he quoted from a letter written him by C. J. Thompson, Defiance, representative of the fifth Ohio Congressional district, and a member of the agriculture committee.

In making the letter public, Wharton refused to comment, and declared he had no further information from Thompson, and that the letter made no further reference to the corn borer question.
